'He Who Hits Pays'

From a Mexican notebook: Sears-Roebuck, now building its third store in Mexico City, is credited with revolutionizing merchandising methods not merely in this country but in all Latin America where Sears has pioneered.

The idea of a small profit on a mass turnover was new, as was the business of "mark-down" sales on goods which had not moved with the expected speed. The old idea had been to put a price on an item and let it remain, even though the item might become dust-covered and yellowed with age. Self-service departments find, despite the greater prevalence of poverty and a large low income group, no greater percentage of shop-lifting thefts than in the United States or other countries.

To a visitor whose first journey here was 18 years ago, with others following at fairly spacious intervals, the change is great and obvious. It is marked in the stores, their window displays, the smart merchandising, and in the general tempo of things.

The change goes deep. To one traveling by car the fact that today the gasoline filling stations along the main highways have restrooms equal in cleanliness to those in the United States is an almost incredible discovery, remembering conditions of a decade and more ago.

The city reflects a good mayor. The fountains, many of which had fallen into disuse and disrepair, are all in service, adding tremendously to the beauty of the parks and streets. Neat signs inform the people of a city where water is a problem that there is no "loss," since pumps enable reuse of one supply. There seems always to be a small group before each sign, reading it, discussing it, and looking at the fountain with great admiration.

Constant Drama

Transportation is a constant drama. In the thirties your correspondent flew into Mexico City in a special flight Eastern Air Line DC3, with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker in charge. The airport was, as were many in those days, comparatively primitive. Today, there is a magnificient, busy international terminal and airport, with additions still a-building. Eastern and French airlines all operate frequent flights into it, as do the lines of Latin-American companies.

Street traffic in Mexico City is an adventure in daring. The taxis are good and cheap, but a ride is not always a tranquilizing experience. The accident rate for automobiles is fairly high, but, with typical Latin pragmatism, there is an unwritten law which operates as if it were constitutional. It is described by the phrase, "El que pege paga". . . . "He who hits pays." This simplifies the argument and, in the end, averages out. If you hit someone, even the character who suddenly pulls in front of your car, you pay. No matter what the circumstances "El que pege paga." Without question, it makes for simplicity, if not for absolute justice.

A Fabulous City

University City is unique, and perhaps even as so many say, fabulous. Certainly it is awe-inspiring in its sweep of imaginative architectural designs and construction. The library, of some eight stories, is windowless and all four walls are covered with murals against a background of dark red. Most of the modernistic buildings have at least one wall covered by a magnificently conceived and executed mural. One in bas-relief, celebrating engineering and science, is especially spectacular.

It seemingly is a very functional university. Medicine, dentistry, veterinary science, engineering, economics, dramatics, art, liberal arts . . . and others . . . all occupy adequate buildings and space. The swimming pool, which meets Olympic standards, is gasp-producing. The artistically designed stadium invokes admiring phrases. The campus of several hundred acres, also includes a number of book stores, supply shops and a branch bank.

About 1,000 American students are registered there, and the probabilities are this total will increase with the years. The emphasis is on education.

The real Mexico lies outside the night clubs, souvenier shops, bars and bullfight rings.

Report on Baxley Roads Is Full of Discrepancies

By JACK NELSON
Constitution Staff Writer

BAXLEY—The State Highway Department's report on the amount of road work done in Baxley under state contracts is loaded with discrepancies, and a highway official will begin remeasurement of all projects Thursday.

C. W. Leftwich, author of the department's report, returned to Baxley Wednesday. He said that in remeasuring the projects he will make a definite record of how much of the work was done according to contract. He said he understands State Auditor B. E. Thrasher is interested in this information.

The Atlanta Constitution has sworn statements that some of the work included in the report actually was performed by convicts.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Police Chief W. H. Branch, who also is superintendent of city streets, has pointed out thousands of dollars worth of work which he said was not done under the contracts but which the highway department included in its report.

Branch said some of the work was done years before the contracts were let.

Leftwich, highway department construction engineer, told a Constitution reporter he went to the highway office at Baxley Wednesday and examined records which C. P. Chapman, resident engineer, said had suddenly turned up in his office Tuesday.

These are only part of the missing records, Leftwich said. Some of the most vital records supporting the amount of work supposed to have been done are still missing, he said.

NO IDEA

Leftwich said he does not have any idea where they are and neither does Chapman.

Leftwich said M. L. Shadburn, state highway engineer, told him to find out all the details about work done here under the state-city contracts.

"Mr. Shadburn said the state auditor called him and told him there would have to be a lot more information on this before it goes by the auditor's office," Leftwich said. "Mr. Shadburn called me to tell me what Mr. Thrasher said."

Highway board chairman Roy Chalker and Leftwich told a press conference Friday that Leftwich had remeasured work projects in Baxley and had found the state got $13,587.11 more work than it had paid for under state-city contracts since 1955.

DUNN PAID $125,000

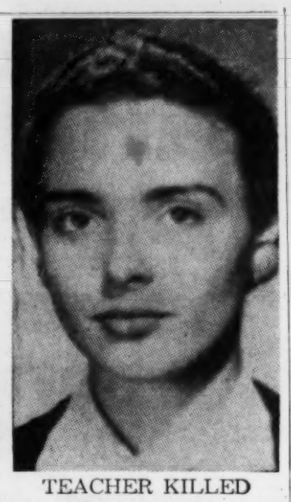

Leftwich began his investigation after The Constitution reported the state had paid about $241,000 for work in Baxley, much of which was not done. Baxley Mayor J. M. (Buck) Dunn was paid about $125,000 by the city under these contracts. Dunn sublet most of the remaining work under the contracts to another firm.

Leftwich said in his report that "remeasurement of contracts shows amount of work in place"

HURT IN WRECK
Miss Joanne Miklas

TEACHER KILLED
Miss Louisa Allen

Atlanta Teacher, Kin Of Bona Allen, Killed

A 23-year-old Roosevelt High School teacher was killed Wednesday when her car overturned on a rain-slick highway 40 miles west of Gainesville, Fla.

Miss Louisa Jane Allen, a 1956 honor graduate of Agnes Scott College and a great-granddaughter of the late Bona Allen of Buford, died instantly in the smash-up on U.S. Highway 129 near Old Town, Fla., according to the Florida Highway Patrol.

RETURNING TO ATLANTA

Miss Joanne Pross Miklas, another Roosevelt High teacher, who was returning to Atlanta with Miss Allen, suffered possible broken ribs and abrasions in the wreck.

Troopers said the crash occurred when Miss Allen's car passed a truck and cut back in order to miss an oncoming auto. They said Miss Allen apparently lost control and the car flipped over twice on the rain-drenched highway.

Miss Miklas was resting at her parents' home in Tampa, Fla., Wednesday night.

BUFORD NATIVES

Miss Allen was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bona Allen III, Buford natives who moved last year to Punta Gorda, Fla.

The two teacners, who shared an apartment at 449 E. Ponce de Leon Ave., Decatur, were returning to Atlanta after spending the Easter holidays with their parents in Florida.

"They left for Florida last Thursday afternoon," said Dan M. Wells, principal at Roosevelt High School. "They were scheduled to report for classes this Thursday morning."

"WELL LIKED"

Miss Allen's death was "certainly a tragic thing," Wells said. "She was an excellent teacher and well-liked by everybody—both teachers and students liked her very much."

Miss Allen taught Spanish and English classes in the ninth, 10th and 11th grades, Wells said. She and Miss Miklas began teaching at Roosevelt in 1956, he added.

Miss Miklas, who also was graduated from Agnes Scott in 1956, teaches 10th and 11th grade classes in social studies, world history and American history.

Miss Allen, a popular debutante in Atlanta, enrolled at Agnes Scott after graduating from Washington Seminary, where she was a member of Pi Pi Sorority and

Lanier Post Given Back To Teacher

LAKELAND (AP) — Gray-haired Mrs. A. B. Baskin has won reinstatement to the Lanier County teacher job which she gave up—under pressure, she said—after permitting a white boy to ride on a Negro school bus.

She was restored for the rest of the school term, during which she will become eligible to retire at 65 with pension benefits. All pay lost since she quit Feb. 1 will be made good.

Chairman Wallace Thigpen said the county board reversed an earlier decision and reinstated her upon recommendation of state school officials. Attending the meeting were a member of the state school board, Lonnie Sweatt of nearby Blackshear, and an area representative of the Department of Education, John Morrison of Waycross.

Thigpen said discussion was brief. The state officials expressing a wish that the issue be disposed of locally. The county board action canceled a state board hearing set for April 24 on an appeal from the county board's earlier action.

Mrs. Baskin, who was present with her lawyer, expressed relief that the question finally had been settled. She said the experience had been trying for her.

A flareup attending her resignation, which the county board members claimed was voluntary, stirred keen interest inside and outside the South Georgia county. Some looked upon the controversy as a test of just how far Georgia's ironclad racial segregation could be carried.

Mrs. Baskin, a teacher for 18 years, emphasized that she believes in segregation. She explained that she allowed the boy, Pat Taylor, one of her fourth graders, to ride the Negro bus only as a final alternative.

Winds Knock Out Power Firm's Power

Georgia Power Co. troubleshooters didn't have far to go for trouble Wednesday night.

It was in their own building. Winds knocked out a fuse box near the Decatur Street office.

The troubleshooters pulled out their flash lights and lanterns and got their own office in operation before answering the flood of calls.

Strike Fails; Fights Rage Into Night

By LARRY ALLEN

HAVANA (AP)—A bold rebel uprising fizzled out under police gunfire in Havana Wednesday and set off a Batista government counter offensive that raged through the night. Blood flowed in widespread gun fights.

Twenty-six rebels have been counted dead since the abortive revolt was launched.

Late Wednesday night the estimated toll of rebel dead was more than 30 and the figure was expected to go even higher.

POLICEMEN KILLED

Two policemen were killed and several wounded.

The rebels' vaunted general strike call was a failure.

President Fulgencio Batista's tough, heavily armed national police ranged about the capital and its suburbs with orders to break up rebel nests and shoot to kill any motorist sighted with arms or sabotage devices.

Motorized and foot patrols were reinforced.

HEAT WAS ON

The heat was on in the government's challenge to the followers of rebel leader Fidel Castro. He declared total war last Saturday by the Cuban people against "the tyranny of Batista."

The main army and navy forces in Havana stood by in their garrisons, awaiting a call to crush any armed opposition that might be too tough for the police.

Rebel sabotage left some marks. The heart of Havana was blacked out by gas and electric power failures due to bomb explosions. Newspaper and other offices worked by the light of lanterns and candles.

SHOT ON ROOFS

Rebel sharpshooters fired on police from rooftops of buildings. Most of them fled when police fire back. Two were shot dead on their roofs.

Rebels riddled a police patrol car in nearby Marianao, killing one officer and wounding two. Another policeman was shot dead in Luyano, an eastern suburb.

Outside the Havana area, rebels fatally wounded police Lt. Jose Pedraza, son of a former national police chief. He was shot down at Santa Clara, in Las Villas Province.

May Halt Tests Soon, Ike Asserts

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT
(Copyright 1958, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower said Wednesday he would consider "very seriously" suspending nuclear tests if the impending series produced satisfactory scientific information.

"The scientists would have to tell me what they thought it necessary to find out, and whether they had largely or almost completely found out the things they wanted to know," the President told his news conference.

Then, he said, it might be "perfectly proper" for him to issue a unilateral statement suspending tests.

MOST UNLIKELY

Government scientists were quick to note that nuclear tests beginning this month at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Pacific were most unlikely to turn up all they needed to know.

They recalled in particular that Dr. Edward Teller and Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, nuclear specialists, have said that tests of smaller bombs with little or no radioactive fallout might take several years.

The scientists were more optimistic about getting the answers during the coming tests to other problems of nuclear defense. They included the following:

1. How to set off an anti-ballistic missile warhead.

HIGH ALTITUDE

2. What happens when an anti-missile warhead sets off a hydrogen bomb explosion at very high altitudes.

3. Effects on submarines of nuclear depth charges.

President Eisenhower said he thought parts of James R. Kil-

54-Mile Winds Down Trees and Cables Here

Howling winds with gusts up to 54 miles an hour socked Atlanta Wednesday night, knocking down trees and utility lines over the metropolitan area.

Power lines were blown down or knocked down by falling trees in the northwest and northeast sections of Atlanta and at Doraville and Pine Lake.

Trees and power lines were reported down in the Buckhead, Tuxedo road and West End sections and along the Lawrenceville road.

NO INJURIES

No one was reported injured in the big blow.

The board fence around the State Capitol was blown into the street at Hunter street and Piedmont avenue.

The winds, which hit their peak at 9:40 p.m. did minor damage to some homes and blew windows from buildings.

The wind began stirring up shortly past 6 p.m. and became stronger by the hour, hitting top speed between 9:15 and 10 p.m.

TORNADO FEARED

Hundreds of Atlantans, fearing that the city was being hit by a tornado, kept telephone lines at the U.S. Weather Bureau and newspaper and radio stations tied up for almost an hour. There was no tornado alert.

More rain is forecast for Atlanta and north Georgia Thursday and Friday. Both days will be mild with predicted temperature extremes of 50 and 58. Wednesday's extremes in Atlanta were 48 and 61.

OUT OF GULF

The gale-force winds came from a squall line which blew out of the Gulf of Mexico and moved northeastward over most of Georgia.

Heavy rains and thunderstorms hit Albany, Valdosta, Savannah and Brunswick.

The high winds had very little effect on airlines operating in and out of Atlanta. An airline spokesman said that some flights were slightly delayed but that the delays were caused by the rain and not by the wind.

Tax Increase For Grady Ruled Out

By FRANK WELLS

Fulton County will not levy any tax increase this year to pay for increased operating costs at Grady Memorial Hospital, it was decided at a luncheon meeting Wednesday of county commissioners and Fulton-DeKalb Hospital Authority members.

Instead, the calendar year 1958 will be used as a year of "experiments and experience" to establish a budget for operating the huge, new health facility. Fulton County Commission Chairman Carlyle Fraser said the commission would "stand behind" the authority in any method of financing the authority decided upon to raise the necessary additional money.

FUND RAISING

Commissioners and authority members left it up to Fraser and Authority Chairman Hughes Spalding to work out some means of raising the $750,000 additional funds which the authority had sought from the county. Probable source would be borrowed funds, repayable out of future years' budgets, authority members said.

Chairman Spalding of the authority asked for a one-mill increase in county taxes levied for hospital operations. This would have raised the levy from four mills to five. He said that all available figures showed that the hospital would cost $1,000,000 more to operate this year than last.

FOR PERSONNEL

One mill would raise only $750,000 of the amount, Spalding said, but he estimated that the additional money would be derived from out-patient fees and charges for drugs administered.

Spalding said that the increased cost would be almost entirely spent for personnel. He outlined how costs of personnel had increased, and also how many more

East Point Votes $1 Million Bond Issue by 2 to 1

East Point approved a million-dollar bond issue for city improvements in a light turnout of voters Wednesday.

Churchill's Visit To U.S. Is Off

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill has called off his projected visit to the United States, his secretary says.

The secretary Issued a statement Wednesday saying the 83-year-old statesman has informed President Eisenhower that with much regret he has felt obliged to cancel his visit.

Churchill returned to London last week from the French Riviera after recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

Ike Plans Visit To Augusta if Work Permits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower would like to go to Augusta this weekend for a golfing holiday. But he hasn't decided yet whether he will be able to make the trip.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave newsmen that information late Wednesday after talking with the President.

The press secretary quoted Eisenhower as saying he has some work to clear up and doesn't know yet whether he can get it out of the way in time for an Augusta visit.

Georgia's Economic Outlook

Tourist Business and Retailing Hit Hard by 59-Day Icy Wave

By JIM MONTGOMERY
Constitution Business Editor

EASTMAN — There's no telling yet how many millions of dollars were frozen and rained out of Georgia's economy in February and March of this year.

But the loss—overshadowed in the news by Florida's disastrous season—was substantial.

Fifth in a special series of economic reports.

Among the many who will carry a disquieting memory of this 59-day period is W. S. Stuckey, the Horatio Alger of Dodge County.

Stuckey, capitalizing on the tourists' sweet tooth and a formula for tasty pecan candy, has put his name on a chain of 72 roadside stores since World War II.

His product is candy, but his business is tourists.

And this year they failed to materialize along the highways leading to Southern resorts.

Though he came nowhere near losing his shirt, Stuckey allows that the seemingly endless dreary weather "cut heavily into one of our two best seasons."

And because the tourists stayed home, he had to cut about 20 employes off his payroll here, reducing the total at his only plant to 101 at present.

Motels, gas stations, retailers and many others took similar or worse beatings from the weather.

An on-the-scene Constitution survey of cities throughout the state brought these typical comments:

FT. VALLEY—"We had our worst month in history because of the February cold wave," Mrs. J. H. Burnham of Holland's Court lamented. "Advance reservation cancellations came thick and fast when the freeze hit Florida. Our occupancy rate for the month was about 50 per cent. It's been 100 per cent in all other Februarys."

As if to prove the old adage about an ill wind that blows no good, the cold weather made a President's Antidote For Recession: Buy!

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday gave the American people a one-word antirecession formula: "Buy!"

Buy what?

"Anything," Eisenhower said.

At the same time, the President again ruled out any immediate, emergency tax cut.

Eisenhower offered his advice on buying, later qualified a bit, at a news conference at which he also:

Took a strong, fighting stance for his program to reorganize the Pentagon and place more authority over strategy and finances in the hands of Secretary of Defense McElroy. He labeled as senseless complaints from some members of Congress that the plan would create a czar.

But it was on the pressing problem of the business slump at home that the conference bore down from the outset. The first question sought Eisenhower's thinking about a tax reduction in the light of current economic conditions and Tuesday's government announcement that unemployment rose about 25,000 in the month which ended in mid-March — a period in which joblessness usually declines.

"I see no figures that bring this thing to a critical point and requires a decision at the moment," Eisenhower replied.

The persistent increase in living costs in the face of recession,

Stratton's Man Loses In Illinois

CHICAGO (UP)—Gov. William G. Stratton's political prestige and a possible shot at the Republican vice presidential nomination in 1960 suffered a setback in Illinois' first - in - the - nation primary. A Stratton-backed candidate was defeated in Tuesday's voting to nominate a candidate for state treasurer.

Louis Beckman, the GOP regular organization choice for the treasurer nomination, fell before veteran campaigner Warren Wright, 65, two-time former Illinois treasurer.

On the basis of unofficial and incomplete returns, Wright won by a margin of more than 77,000 votes, 349,876 votes to 272,533 for Beckman.

The second blow to Stratton came in a congressional race. Mrs. Norma Eaton, a Newton attorney, scored an upset to win the 21st District GOP nomination by about 2,000 votes. She whipped theater chain executive John D. Giachetto, Springfield, who was backed by the Stratton administration.

Wright's victory forced Stratton to concede his state GOP organization was in need of "repairs," and he intimated a shakeup in party machinery shortly.

Navy Near Success In Heat Electricity

Atom Power Would Be Cheap With Thermoelectric Couples

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy believes it is "on the verge of a breakthrough" in its experiments on converting heat directly into electricity.

If the efforts are successful, cheap atomic power is on the way and the existing conventional power industry faces a revolution.

The Navy's claim was relayed to a House Appropriations subcommittee recently by Rear Adm. A. M. Morgan of the Bureau of Ships. His closed-door testimony was released earlier this week.

ON THE VERGE

"We are on the verge of a breakthrough apparently in conversion of heat to electric power through thermoelectric couples," Morgan said. "We should have something definite on this in a matter of three years."

In thermoelectric couples two different metals are joined, and one is heated. The electrons thus stirred up flow from one metal to the other, creating an electric current.

Such couples in the form of tiny bars or wires have long been used as temperature gauges and even as weak power supplies. The efficiency of conversion was too low, however, to make them useful on a large scale.

IF SUCCESSFUL

In his testimony, Morgan told the subcommittee:

"We now have a field of endeavor which if successful will enable us to get efficiencies comparable to those obtained with conventional power plants."

Morgan did not specifically mention atomic energy. But nuclear power enthusiasts dream of finding a way to convert atomic heat directly into electrical power. This would eliminate costly items like heat - transfer equipment, boilers, turbines and generators.

Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission has said he is confident such direct conversion will be achieved. Scientists generally believe when hydrogen energy is harnessed, if it ever is, direct conversion will be one of the dividends.

Khrushchev Scolds Reds In Satellites

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev criticized Communist leaders in East Europe Wednesday for refusing to co-operate on the economic front. He said they were going to meet soon to talk things over.

The visiting Soviet leader spoke at the great Csepel steel works, center of resistance in the 1956 Hungarian revolt. Thousands of indifferent workers filed out to lunch as he spoke.

Western reporters were refused admittance to the plant. They clocked workmen leaving, sometimes at the rate of more than 100 a minute.

MESSAGES SIZZLED EVEN AS ROMANCE COOLED

Lana's 'Dear John' Letter Is Bared

LOS ANGELES (UP)—"Yes, what a shocking thrill it would be to see you on the plane, or wherever—but this is not right.

"You must let me be alone in my 'own world' for a while to rest, think, rest, think. I'll know when the time is right, if it is ever to be again."

Lana Turner thus indicated in January, in another of her burning love letters to Johnny Stompanato, that she was beginning to have doubts about their romance.

Stompanato, 32, handsome former bodyguard to ex-gambler Mickey Cohen, was stabbed to death last Friday night in Lana's Beverly Hills bedroom. Her 14-year-old daughter, Cheryl, said she did the stabbing to protect Lana from Stompanato's threats.

Coroner Theodore J. Curphey and Dist. Atty. William B. McKesson said Miss Turner's daughter has been excused from attending Friday's inquest into Stompanato's death at the request of the actress' attorney, Jerry Giesler.

A second batch of the letters was printed Wednesday in a copyrighted article in the Los Angeles Herald-Express, which got them from an undisclosed source.

Cohen told a reporter Wednesday that he acquired the letters before Stompanato's death, "but I didn't know what they were."

Cohen said he gave the letters to the Herald-Express after he became angry with Miss Turner.

He said: "Here was a boy who met a horrible accident in a woman's house. She started to claim he was an unwelcome guest. She didn't even offer to pay for the funeral. I was sorry for Lana at first, but I'm not sorry now."

The 38-year-old blonde actress wrote them this past winter while on a movie assignment in England. They indicated that she and Johnny, then in California, frequently talked by telephone and discussed whether he should join her. He afterward did.

Despite some indications of doubt about the future, the letters brim with expressions of affection, some in Spanish or Italian.

"How I miss you," says a letter dated Jan. 12 and signed Tu Zincarella (your gypsy). "It's true I wish I did not feel it so much! But I do—at this moment, if I could only creep into your arms, snuggle so close, and whisper, 'Oh, my daddy love.'"

DULL AND LONELY

A Jan. 5 missive from the five times-married star said in part:

"Today started with a letter to you—and as this day, as dull and lonely as it was, is closing, I find I'm drawn to writing you once more!

"Oh, the many things I long to put on paper, yet my heart and my hand ache when I attempt to do so.

"How rereading your dear letters affected me, including those sweet notes you used to send with the flowers! Also wires I had kept since back in May.

"So many precious things you told me, described to me, each beautiful and intimate detail of our love, our hopes, our dreams, our sex and longings.

TIME TO THINK

"My God, how you could write and when near me, make most of those dreams come to life and throb with the realness of you and me and us."

The letter asking time to rest and think was dated Jan. 15.

It added: "I fully realize NOW that you feel there will never be difference. I DON'T yet. That is why I need the time and a different place to funnel thru all the emotional turmoil I've been through.

"I beg you don't do anything just yet. I'll know when the time is right, if it is ever to be again. Please leave that up to me, one decision that I must make and make alone!

"The enthusiasm you conveyed was exciting — still much more though on my part, at least, must be gone through. With love, I beg you to understand this. Cuidada (take care) L."

WATCHING CLOCK

A Jan. 5 letter told of rereading "your beautiful letters":

"Oh, angel — sometimes they hurt, even when I'm happy reading them. I still have the most awful constriction in my heart and tummy—I try desperately not to think too long on us—(not much success tho'). Just keep watching the clock, wanting the hours to fly away—and how sad, that is, we all have so few granted us—that to will them to be gone quickly seems sacrilegeous!! However, in my case, it's all too true!.

"Last night was wonderful talking to you—yet!—AFTER we hung up — there it was again — all the pain, confusion, ache — Oh! God darling, it's too much—sometimes, I think, STOP, don't write, don't call him—'don't think' of any of it, FRETEND it didn't happen—ANY OF IT.

"But so far my 'powers' are not that strong! And of course, in this house, I see and hear and feel only you—it has to be better than I can leave here—find a new perspective of everything—only then, will I really know what the future holds!

"So until then, dear one, take very very good care of yourself — the usual, eat, sleep, rest as much as you can—and I'll be trying to do the same, I promise! Know that you are in my thoughts and my prayers, for us both, to be able to find some happiness, or peace, sometime, someplace on this earth!"

FUNNY CARDS

A letter received Jan. 21 at Malibu, Calif., said in part:

"Darling, your sweet, adorable letters I've received and they've made me so very happy! Also the very funny cards!—except the last one—the red-heart one!! That was rather sad—because you signed it only 'John'—never before, except, in anger, maybe, have you signed off 'thus.'

"Yes, all day Friday the 10th I thought of you—and us!

"Oh, oh, oh!—how lonely it all is!—hearing the music we played together! Plus your last gift of records—darling—they bring happy aches, if there can be such a thing—only, I don't want to hurt and feel pain like this.

PILLS TAKING OVER

"All of this is not very connected I guess. I'll close now—the pills seem to be taking over! If only I could cuddle so very close to you—you know how it would be!"

Lana has declined comment on the letters' publication. An initial group was printed Tuesday. Her attorney said it would be unethical for the actress to issue statements while Cheryl awaits a juvenile court hearing.

Indonesian Rebels Assail Egypt, Reds

SINGAPORE (AP) — The Indonesian rebels Wednesday accused Egypt of training Indonesian government pilots to fly MIG jet planes bought from Communist countries.

A spokesman at rebel headquarters in Bukittinggi said the bombers were being assembled in Egypt by Czecho engineers and woud be flown to Indinesia soon.

On the fighting fronts, rebel guerrillas continued to spar with central government troops around Lubuk Djambi, trying to cut the rebel supply road to south Sumatra.

The village of Lubuk Djambi was described as a no man's land with the central government troops holding the north side of the village and sporadic fighting continuing in the southern part.

Stompanato Is Buried With Military Honors

WOODSTOCK, Ill. (AP)—Johnny Stompanato was buried in his evening clothes Wednesday. Lana Turner, the mother of 14-year-old Cheryl Crane who told police she stabbed him to death, and Mickey Cohen, his gangland pal, omitted flowers.

A Presbyterian minister in the full uniform of an American Legionnaire read the 25 - minute service over the casket containing the body of the ex-Marine from Woodstock who became a movie queen's pampered lover.

Stompanato, 32, was then buried with full military honors in Oakland Cemetery on the edge of this northern Illinois village, 50 miles from Chicago.

Cohen, the self - styled "ex-gangster" from Los Angeles who once hired Stompanato as a bodyguard, was not among the mourners. Neither was Miss Turner.

Clifford Merwin, director of the White Frame Funeral Home where the services were held, said there were no contributions from Cohen or anyone else in Hollywood among the dozen floral pieces arranged about Stompanato's flag-draped casket.

Cohen paid the funeral expenses, however, and Merwin said a purple wreath arrived with the casket from California without any identification of the donor.

Stompanato's brother, Carmine, his step - mother, Mrs. Verena Stompanato, and his sister, Mrs. Grace Martinotti, led the mourners.

At the moment of burial, there was bitterness in the Stompanato family over "Johnny's fate."

Carmine Stompanato, a Woodstock barber and spokesman for the family, repeated his demands for a thorough investigation of the slaying and his doubts that a "little girl" like Cheryl Crane could have killed his husky brother.

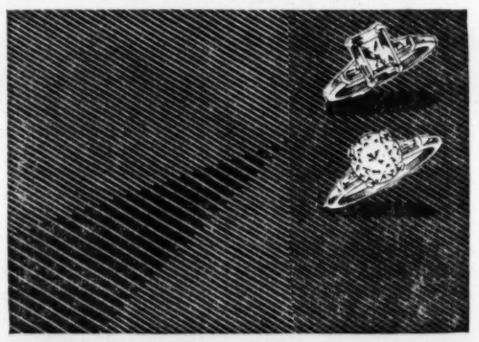

Townspeople who remembered "Johnny" paid relatively little attention to the rites.

A woman of about Stompanato's age said "I get a kick out of feeling a glamorous and wealthy movie queen was madly in love with him and no girl around here would have him. He was considered trash."

Let's Place Blame Where It Belongs

As investigations of the Baxley road mess proceed, the shoddy pattern revealed becomes more and more disgusting.

It is no longer a matter of screaming "smear" at newspapers for exposing an unbelievable situation. It has now become a game by the highway department to place the blame on the most convenient shoulders at hand. In this case, it seems to be the engineers.

State Highway Board Chairman Roy Chalker, who last week staged a press conference to whitewash the affair, finally admitted yesterday in an echo to the words of the chief engineer the disclosures were "embarrassing to everybody" in the department.

Saying it is now obvious irregularities have occurred at Baxley, Mr. Chalker called them an "isolated instance." How "isolated" they are is a matter for debate, especially since Mr. Chalker himself only last Friday saw nothing wrong there following his own "investigation."

Anybody who knows anything about the present highway department setup knows Mr. Shadburn and career engineers within it have no real administrative or other power. This power is vested in a political highway board which is the tool of the governor's office.

In analyzing the present system, it is obvious that the governor—any governor—has complete control of the department. The board and the engineers can be told which roads are to be built, which counties are to be favored, which practices are all right and where all funds are to be spent. As far as administration and policies are concerned, engineers and career people are mere clerks.

Actually, the highway department is a gigantic patronage office for political use of taxpayers' funds. Through the stranglehold it has on county officials and legislators, it has given the governor excessive and unreasonable power. This system has brought favoritism, incredible waste and extravagance, fewer and poorer roads for taxpayers' money.

As long as the present system exists—as long as the State Highway Department is an instrument of the governor's office—such evils as are now being revealed at Baxley will exist.

Board Chairman Chalker came much closer to the truth Tuesday than he perhaps intended when he said the investigation at Baxley should have been Mr. Shadburn's responsibility in the first place. Why wasn't it given him?

Until the General Assembly changes this system and sets up an executive head of the department not subservient to or answerable to the governor, taxpayers in every county are going to be short-changed in roads. The sad fact is that the greatest evil is within the system itself and until it is changed there will be no great improvements.

Meanwhile, let the investigations at Baxley go on until the truth is found. And if laws have been violated, let those responsible pay the penalty.

Workable Plan Readied For Atlanta Home Rule

Weary of waiting for passage of a home rule bill of statewide application, Atlanta is shooting for one of its own.

The Board of Aldermen has approved the establishment of a three-man committee to draft a local bill granting Atlanta the authority to govern itself, with certain exceptions which still would come under jurisdiction of the Legislature.

The plan, advanced by Alderman John A. White, has much to commend it. It would place the responsibility for running the affairs of the city squarely upon the shoulders of officials whom the people elected for that purpose.

It also would prevent recurrences of bad situations where legislators have been guilty of overstepping the bounds in attempting to exercise authority over strictly local matters, such as police pay.

All Georgia communities deserve home rule. But municipalities have found from bitter experience that what they deserve and what they get are quite different. In the absence of a statewide home rule provision, the Atlanta aldermanic board is pursuing the logical course in pushing for passage of a local measure in the 1959 Legislature.

Bartow Citizens Attack Roots of Delinquency

Bartow County's recently launched drive against delinquency is as refreshing as it is sound.

Instead of merely raising the old howl that the younger generation is going to the dogs, the movement at Cartersville recognizes the fact that there is adult as well as juvenile delinquency and charts corrections.

The campaign goes to the root of the problem. PTA groups, ministers and businessmen have banded together in an effort to strengthen family life. Schools and churches have definite roles in molding character but in too many instances parents have placed pratically the entire responsibility on such insitutions.

A Bartow County Family Council is being formed to cope with the situation there. It will provide counseling service for family problems, conduct educational campaigns in family relations, sponsor a countywide survey of family problems and seek the establishment of a juvenile court.

The need for the right kind of home influences is no greater in Bartow than elsewhere. The difference is that citizens of Bartow are doing something about it—and in the proper way.

And One Wonders Why Legislature Is Weak

A somewhat obscure news item of Wednesday announced that the Rockdale Democratic Executive Committee has named unopposed candidates for an April 16 election to the General Assembly.

Clarence R. Vaughn Jr., of Conyers, has been named candidate for the 34th district senatorial seat to represent DeKalb, Gwinnett and Rockdale counties.

We are not too familiar with Mr. Vaughn's qualifications or abilities. He perhaps has everything it takes to be a good legislator. But Mr. Vaughn will be chosen without opposition from the small county of Rockdale to represent one of the most populous senatorial districts in the state because of the Senate rotation system.

The Georgia Senate is a weakening influence on the legislative branch of state government because of an outmoded and unjust system which makes it impossible for a senator to succeed himself. A man elected to it becomes a lame duck the day he takes office.

But the Rockdale Democratic Executive Committee now speaks for more than 200,000 people in the 34th senatorial district. Apparently it speaks for the citizens of Rockdale as well in naming the incumbent representative as the man to succeed himself.

The workings of democracy in Georgia sometimes are strange indeed!

Schools Could Stand Some Quality Control

Everybody's talking about education. Here and there, the school people themselves are doing something about it.

The board of school commissioners in Indianapolis, for example, has adopted a differentiated or four-way diploma plan effective next school year.

Beginning next fall, freshmen in the high schools there will set their sights on one of four diplomas: academic, fine and practical arts, vocational and general.

To attain one of the first three, the student must graduate with not less than a C-plus average.

The academic, which means college preparatory, the arts and the vocational diploma will require courses beyond the general diploma minimum. Those courses will include two years of mathematics, with three years of math the minimum for pre-engineering.

The academic and arts certificates will require four years of high school English.

The differentiated diploma plan makes sense.

Up to now, education has been putting the same label on the product.

Industry doesn't do that. The product is graded—premium, regular, irregular. It seems logical that the schools too, should grade the product.

The employing public should be able to tell whether it is buying high octane education or regular.

Education needs what industry calls "quality control."

'Look Homeward Angel' Wins Critics' Acclaim

All members of the Thomas Wolfe Reading Circle will be happy, but not surprised, that the play, "Look Homeward, Angel" has received the highest honor possible—selection by the New York critics as the best American play on Broadway.

The drama, made from Wolfe's first novel, has been a sellout since it opened. It was the first novel by the great North Carolinan and the one which attracted the most attention. It caused his hometown of Asheville to develop hysterics and threats of lynching. For years the library would not stock his novels.

Last year the Wolfe estate made more money than Wolfe himself collected in his entire writing career. It was not until after his untimely death at 38 that he became really famous. All his books today are in print and, more important, in demand. And the play is the best on Broadway. That pleases all us Wolfe addicts.

'Lawyer Bloch's Memo to Court Smacks Of Old Divine-Right-of-Kings Philosophy'

Atlanta — Regarding Charles Bloch's memorandum to the U.S. court relative to Mayor Hartsfield's current attempt to void the present inequitable county unit system in one of the original 13 states of the U.S.A.: It is shocking to find the ancient philosophy of divine right of kings still exists in operations of the State Democratic Executive Committee even though Georgia fought to eliminate such a fallacy.

To quote from Mr. Bloch's memo (per Gene Britton), "When and if any Georgia citizen (spelled with a small "c") gets the privilege of voting in a primary, he gets it as a matter of grace, not as a matter of right."

This is rather nauseating! It would appear to the layman not versed in the many obtuse subterfuges of politics and law by means of which "representative" government is biased to the benefit of political machines and of special interests of a number of interesting classifications, that the time for a little hard thinking on the part of the average citizenry is overdue.

Why not boycott the primaries and use write-in votes to elect fresh independents? Or can you write-in with voting machines?

Atlantan Lambastes Politicians' Bombast

Atlanta—I want to call attention to some statements our politicians like to make. They represent a strong challenge to every one of us.

First: "You cannot legislate morals." This is so ridiculously stupid as to be vicious.

All the laws, of course, have been made and given to make people behave and for no other purpose. Without these laws, imperfect as they may be, we would still be in the jungle.

Laws have to be formulated so that everyone knows what to do in order not to violate the rights of others.

The second statement is "All moderates are professional do-gooders." This is directed against all people who urge the politicians not to drive the racial question into a catastrophe.

It must be clear to everybody that the so-called "Southern Tradition" is nothing but the oppression of a minority race for economical gain and profit and for political purposes.

Mr. Chalker's Recorder Evokes Tax Inspiration

In the Brantley Enterprise

The Georgia Recorder, weekly newspaper published by Mr. Chalker, chairman of the State Highway Board, suggested to my mind a great idea for a possible reduction in taxes for the people of Georgia. My idea is that every department of state government start a weekly paper, sell advertising to the people who deal with the given department and give the profits from each paper to the state treasury.

For instance, the highway board chairman already has a paper selling advertisements to asphalt dealers, machinery dealers and others who sell to the state and to state contractors. All the profits could be turned in to the state treasury, inasmuch as the time given to publishing this paper should be given to highway board affairs.

Then the governor can start a weekly paper, sell advertisements to all who are dependent on him for favors and turn the profits from the paper over to the state treasury.

The comptroller could publish a paper and sell advertisements to the insurance companies and the small loan companies and turn the profits over to the state treasury.

And so forth, on down the line of state officials, each with a newspaper selling advertisements to those who would like to deal with the given official or his department.

A huge profit could probably be realized and turned over to the state treasury and a proportionate reduction could be made in state taxes.

Mr. Chalker, chairman of the State Highway Board, is reported to have said that profits from his Georgia Recorder are given to the Scottish Rite Hospital. But we don't know how much "profits" have thus accrued to the hospital.

And, too, it has not been revealed how much Mr. Chalker charges at his Waynesboro printing plant for printing the Georgia Recorder. Also, we are not told how much salary Mr. Chalker pays himself for editing the Georgia Recorder. All the receipts of the paper could possibly be absorbed in such expenses.

If my plan to let each state official publish a newspaper is adopted, the state would probably have to install a "Newspaper Profits Inspector" whose duty it would be to see that the printing and editing expenses of such newspapers did not eat up the profits.

Now, I contend that my idea is the first really great plan suggested in many years for a huge reduction in state taxes.

Of course some citizens have the old-fashioned notion that a state official should give his time to carrying out the duties of his office, instead of running a newspaper. The people might have to be "educated" to the idea that a state official could run his state job as sort of a sideline while he pulled down a lot of advertising profits to turn over to the state.

Now, I claim that my plan for reducing state taxes is original and challenging and deserves the attention of our citizens, along with the Sputniks and space travel.

(Editor's Note: So many people take all they see in the papers as real truth and facts that I must admit that this editor's tongue is in his cheek and that what he is seriously thinking is, "How long, Oh Lord, how long?")

The Duck Was Poor in Running

Spotlight on the schools and particularly on the curriculum makes pertinent a clipping which has been aging in the files. It presents a modern fable called "The Animal School." It is attributed to Dr. G. H Reavis. I read it in Leodel Coleman's Bulloch Herald. Leodel said a teacher gave the story to him. This is it — "The Animal School."

"Once upon a time the animals decided they must do something heroic to meet the problems of a "new world." So they organized a school. They adopted an activity curriculum consisting of running, climbing, swimming and flying. To make it easier to administer the curriculum it was decided that all of the animals should take all of the subjects.

"The duck was excellent in swimming. In fact, he was far better than the instructor, but he could not do more than make passing grades in flying and was very poor in running. Since he was so slow in running, he had to remain after school and drop swimming in order to practice running. But average was acceptable in the school, so nobody worried about that except the duck.

"The rabbit started at the top of the class in running, but had a nervous breakdown because of so much make-up work in swimming. The squirrel was excellent in climbing until he developed frustration in the flying class where his teacher insisted that he start from the ground up instead of from the treetop down. He also developed "charlie horses" from over-exertion and then got a C in climbing and a D in running.

"The eagle was indeed a problem child and was disciplined severely. In the climbing class, he beat all others to the top of the tree, but insisted on using his own way to get there. At the end of the year an abnormal eel that could swim exceedingly well, run, climb, and fly a little had the highest average and was made valedictorian.

"The prairie dogs stayed out of school and fought the tax levy because the administration refused to add digging and burrowing to the curriculum. They apprenticed their child to a badger and joined with the groundhogs and gophers to start a very successful private school."

HIGHLINE: We beat the Russians in one race. We dropped a bomb on United States soil before they did.—Al Quattlebaum in the Pike County Journal.

Gen. Maxwell Taylor

U.S. Must Prepare For More Koreas

WASHINGTON—As an amateur columnist writing in the place of that respected professional, Thomas L. Stokes, I should like to plead the case for greater faith in the effectiveness of our military strength. I believe many of us fail to recognize the great deterrent in military strength which has been developed in our armed forces over the years. Yet if we are to derive full benefit from this strength it is important that we act in full realization of its existence.

There is no doubt in the armed forces that their primary objective is the successful prevention, not the successful prosecution, of war. The most casual reflection upon the consequences of all-out atomic war will convince any man that such a conflict is not war in the historic sense, but rather a tragic form of international suicide. Hence, today all of our military efforts are directed toward the prevention of such an act of pointless folly.

Editor's Note: This article by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, is another in the statesmen's series of columns being written by distinguished personages in the government, national affairs, business and the military for Thomas L. Stokes, who is seriously ill.

How successful have our armed services been in creating forces capable of achieving this objective?

There is no question as to the great destructive power of our air retaliatory force provided by the Air Force and the Navy. Our Army divisions deployed in Europe and in Asia are ready.

At home we are increasing the strength of our continental air defenses, where conventional anti-aircraft artillery has been entirely replaced by surface-to-air missiles of much greater effectiveness. Concurrently, we have powerful air-naval forces capable of maintaining the freedom of the air and of the seas.

It is difficult to believe realists in the Kremlin do not appreciate our strength and hence will not refrain from the deliberate initiation of general atomic war. It is one thing, however, to accept the increasing improbability of a deliberately initiated atomic conflict and another to conclude the Communists will renounce aggressive means to advance their cause.

In other words, in a period when both sides have the capability of destroying one another, they probably believe the United States will accept a higher level of provocation rather than run the risk of general war.

Under such circumstances there will be an increasing need on our part for strong nerves, cool determination and a continuing faith in the deterrent strength which we have invested in our armed forces. Only by understanding and appreciating this strength can we avoid being stampeded into actions which might seriously impair our national security.

One such action could be to concentrate our efforts exclusively upon the needs of general atomic war. Such a course of action would ignore the fact that the most probable type of challenge to America is not the deliberate atomic war but rather infiltration, subversion and small military aggressions similar to those in Greece, Malaya, Viet Nam and Korea.

It is important that we have the military means to deter these types of conflict or to deal with them quickly. Otherwise, we risk the piecemeal attrition of the free world and the ultimate loss of our essential allies.

Person's Thoughts Channel His Life

"His delight is in the law of the Lord; and in His law doth he meditate day and night," says the first Psalm in describing the life of the Godly man. A student of science may at first find the laws of science dull and meaningless. But as he studies and learns them he finds there is a pattern in it all.

He begins to understand and gradually finds delight in the knowledge and understanding he gains.

So it is with the deeper laws of life—the law of the Lord. As one studies the Bible and learns from it the truths that are revealed there, as one comes to know better the life of Christ, His purposes, His methods and His goals, and as one applies those eternal laws to life for himself and sees how they really work out for the best, he finds genuine and deep delight. The laws of God are not to cramp and destroy life; they open the ways to happier, more creative living.

And there is real significance in that phrase "day and night." Some people may be religious by night, in the darkness, where none can see; but not in the day, when all may see. On the other hand, others are anxious to be religious in the day "to be seen of men," but not under the cover of darkness. That is, some feel the faith in their hearts but do not have the courage of their convictions; others put up a good front but do not have it in their hearts.

"Day and night" suggests another thought. Think of a big city. The buildings stand tall against the sky and can be seen by all. But underneath are the subways which carry much of the city's life. So it is with the human life. There is much of the life that is apparent to all. But underneath are desires, thoughts and emotions. One part seen, the other hidden; one is day, the other night. The Godly man is the one who lives the Godly life in both areas.

Sometimes we say a man suddenly goes wrong. Such is not usually the case. Before the wrong becomes apparent, usually it has existed in the hidden recesses of life. "Doth he meditate," the Psalmist put it. Modern psychology teaches that a man's life begins in his thoughts.

Isolationists Balk At Ike's Teamplay

WASHINGTON—While it received little or no attention at the time, a roll-call vote in the Senate shortly before the Easter recess seemed a portent of things to come in the weeks ahead when the Eisenhower administration must meet so many critical tests. Republican senators friendly to the administration were deeply disturbed. The Democratic leader, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, points to the vote as a horrendous example of what is wrong with the Republican minority.

Sen. William E. Jenner, the Indiana isolationist, had proposed an amendment to the surplus commodity law which would have prevented the government from sending surplus agricultural products to Poland and Yugoslavia. While the debate was going on, Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee of the Senate, got Jenner to accept an amendment to his amendment, greatly broadening it.

In a strong speech of protest, Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, an Eisenhower Republican, said the Bridges proposal would keep aid from perhaps 50 countries, including the newly independent nations of the Middle East, Asia and Africa, as well as Poland and Yugoslavia. These are just the countries that the United States hopes to win to the side of freedom.

Bridges was in effect demanding that each nation receiving aid declare in advance that "directly or indirectly it will not support the Soviet Union, the Communist government of China or any other Communist government in the event of hostilities between such a government and the United States."

The Jenner-Bridges amendment was defeated by 53 nays to 24 yeas. Voting for the amendment were Bridges, Sen. William F. Knowland, the minority leader; Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, the Republican whip; Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, who is regarded as Knowland's likely successor, and 18 other Republicans. Only two Democrats, Sens. Richard B. Russell of Georgia and J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, voted for the amendment. On the nay side were 12 Republicans and 41 Democrats.

What this foreshadows for the future is serious trouble for the President's foreign aid program. But it also suggests danger ahead for the Eisenhower reorganization of the Defense Department.

Bridges is opposed to the more drastic provisions of that reorganization. With Knowland leaving the Senate to run for governor of California, Bridges is in fact if not in name the real force in the Republican minority. Resourceful and clever far beyond the slow-moving Knowland, he will stop at nothing to frustrate the White House.

What depresses Eisenhower Republicans is that their leader, the President, seems so little aware of the cross-currents of politics in his own party in the Senate.

City Speeds Slum Plans For Dec. 15 Deadline

10 Homes for the Displaced Are Ready; Washington To Cancel Lagging Projects

By HERMAN HANCOCK

City officials Wednesday moved to meet a Dec. 15 deadline for completing plans for the multimillion-dollar urban renewal program and averting possible withdrawal of federal funds.

Mayor Hartsfield and Col. Malcolm Jones, urban renewal director, sprang into renewed action as announcement was made that the first 10 of some 400 dwellings authorized for displaced persons are nearing completion. A $12 million fund already has been earmarked for the Atlanta renewal program with more to come.

R. L. Steiner, urban renewal commissioner for the Housing and Home Finance Agency, Washington, notified city officials of the Dec. 15 deadline, saying it proposes to weed out laggards in the program.

LOCAL RESISTANCE

Hartsfield asked the regional office of the agency to revalue the need for 221 housing to care for persons displaced by urban renewal and other governmental activities. Some 5,500 units have been approved costing upwards of $50,000,000. The city has had difficulty in locating 221 housing in any substantial numbers because of local resistance.

Jones directed a two-pronged letter to Alderman Hamilton Douglas Jr., chairman of the aldermanic board's urban renewal committee. He asked that the Urban Renewal Agency, Washington, be urged to give approval as soon as possible to preliminary plans for the Auburn avenue and Negro university renewal and rehabilitation areas.

RIGID SCHEDULE

In addition, Jones urged a rigid schedule to meet Urban Renewal Agency requirements. He also notified the Atlanta Housing Authority, the city's agent in renewal efforts, advising it of the warning to meet specifications.

Officials announced Wednesday that Morris A. Bryan is now completing the first 10 houses under the 221 program. The structures are conventionally built to meet over-all R-4 requirements instead of R-5, which has been reserved generally for 221 housing.

A spokesman said the new houses have 950 square feet of floor space, plus another 50 feet of utility space, compared to 810 square feet of floor space and 40 additional square feet of utility room space required for R-5 structures.

ROU ROYAL

The Bryan development known as Rou Royal sub-division is off the intersection of Barge road and Rou Royal avenue, SW. It is for white persons and was financed by Colonial Investment & Mortgage Co. The homes will be sold for $9,000 and will be fully FHA insured for a period of 40 years, as are all other 221 housing, it was said.

Jones pointed out that notification concernin gthe deadline is a "real threat which we must meet." He expects that a report on the third renewal project, the Washington-Rawson street area, will be submitted to aldermen at the May 5 meeting.

Boy, 3, Hit by Truck Here After Climbing Out of Car

A 3-year-old boy was seriously injured Wednesday when struck by a pickup truck after he climbed out the window of a parked car, police reports said.

Roy James Dunlap Jr., of 223 Melrose Dr., SE, was admitted to Grady Hospital with multiple injuries to the head and body, Patrolman R. W. Gilstrap and A. C. Fuller said.

The boy's father had parked the car on Boulevard Drive near Woodbine Ave., SE, to go into a grocery. Store. Patrolmen said they were told Mrs. Dunlap thought of something she wanted to tell her husband and followed him into the store. Leaving the boy and a younger child in the car.

The cars doors were locked, Patrolmen related. They said the child was believed to have climbed out a window and walked from between two cars into the path of a truck driven by Robert Edward Robinson, 22, of 557 North Highland Ave., NE.

Robinson, driving west on Boulevard, said he felt the truck bump something and in the rear view mirror of the truck saw the boy lying in the street, Patrolmen reported. He immediately slammed on brakes, he said.

Mrs. Dunlap walked to the store door in time to see the injured child in the street and began screaming, Patrolmen said.

Officers said no case was made pending further investigation.

Six other persons also were injured in traffic, records showed:

Mrs. Daphne Irene Baker, 26, of 2473 Bellview Ave., NW, was treated at Grady for abrasions to the arms suffered at Poplar and Broad streets, NW. Mrs. Mary Pauline Barnett, 22, of 418 Larkspur Ter., Decatur, suffered injuries to the neck and shoulder in an auto crash on East Rock Springs road.

Nine-year-old Georgia Mae Allen of 596 Oliver St., NW, suffered injuries to the legs when hit by a car at Kennedy street, and Northside drive, NW. Thomas P. Underwood, 17, of 1624 Orlando St., SW, a motor scooter rider, was slightly hurt in an auto-motor scooter crash at Boulevard Granada and DeLowe drive, SW.

Wanda Garmon, 6, of 3614 Wascana Rd., SW, suffered abrasions of the knees and head when hit by a car near her home. Mrs. Gladys E. Hanson, 42, of 204 W. Taylor Ave., East Point, suffered injuries to the back and neck at Linden and Peachtree streets. Two cars were involved.

Lottery Raiders Seize Woman With $1,532 in Stolen Goods Here

Two members of the metropolitan lottery squad made a double haul Wednesday.

Searching a house at 386 Connally St., SE, Patrolmen B. J. Stecher and C. H. Hanes said they found lottery paraphernalia.

They said they also found several items of jewelry which bore store price tags and asked the occupant of the house, Katie Price, 57, where she got the jewelry.

Told they came from a Peachtree street hat shop where she worked, they went there to investigate. Officers said the items were identified as having been stolen.

Returning to the Connally street address, officers said they found $1,532 worth of stolen items, each of which still bore the shop's price tag. They said the loot consisted of handbags, hats and jewelry.

She was held for suspicion of larceny, and the lottery investigation is continuing, officers said.

Prisoner Here Identified as Bandit

A Negro man wanted in the robbery of a Western Union office at Augusta and the disarming of two Augusta policemen who attempted to arrest him has been taken into custody in Atlanta, police said Wednesday.

He was identified as Leroy Wyman Ayers, 27, formerly of Columbus, Ohio.

Dets. H. F. Williams and J. W. Smith said they obtained information that Ayers, who was held at Fulton Tower on a burglary charge, was responsible.

Witnesses to the March 6 robbery of the Western Union office in Augusta came to Atlanta Wednesday and identified Ayers in a police lineup at the Tower, Williams and Smith said. They added $130 was reported lost in the robbery.

Ayers, a judo expert, denied the robbery, detectives said. However, he admitted disarming two Augusta policemen following the robbery and causing a brief reign of terror in Augusta, they said.

"I took their guns," Ayers was quoted, "but I threw them away."

Elbert Unveils Marker In Honor of War Dead

By JOHN T. SMYLY
Constitution Staff Writer

ELBERTON—The people of Elbert County paid tribute Wednesday to two of their proudest possessions . . . their granite resources and the memories of their hero sons who were killed during World War II.

Dedicated in Bobby Brown Memorial Park near here was a granite marker erected in memory of Lt. Robert T. Brown (USNR) and other Elbert County servicemen who lost their lives in the war.

The proud relatives of these men occupied a place of honor on the speakers stand erected near the marker.

Among the many parents, brothers, sisters and wives were Rep. and Mrs. Paul Brown of Elberton, parents of Lt. Brown. The idea for the monument was launched by friends of the veteran legislator and his wife.

Gov. Marvin Griffin was principal speaker at the ceremony at which the 14-foot high monument was unveiled.

People of Elbert County have been anxious to see this marker, and hundreds turned out Wednesday to prove it. They were joined by civilian and military leaders from throughout the southeast despite a threatening sky.

The crowd walked around the triangular pylon to read inscriptions on all three sides. About 30,000 pounds of Elbert County granite were used in the manufacture of the marker, and an additional 24,000 pounds were utilized to enclose the area in which the monument stands.

During the program, Lt. Gov. Ernest Vandiver presented Rep. and Mrs. Brown with a portrait of their son which was painted by Gisbert Palmie, German-born artist whose portrait of Sen. Herman Talmadge was unveiled this week in the capitol at Atlanta.

Lt. Brown attended Elberton High School and the University of Georgia Law School.

During the war he served aboard two U.S. Navy submarines, the Marlin and the Scorpion. On Feb. 22, 1944, the Scorpion was listed as missing. On Jan. 11, 1946, Lt. Brown was listed as killed in action.

During his speech, Gov. Griffin praised the heroism of Lt. Brown and other Georgia veterans who gave their lives for their country. He also promised that work on the memorial park will be completed this year.

Among guests was Sen. Richard B. Russell who spoke Wednesday night at the annual banquet of the Elberton Chamber of Commerce.

Old Cannons Wanted For Fort Restoration

By CHARLES MOORE

Anyone got any War Between the States cannons lying around the house, maybe using them for doorstops or bookends?

Well, the Georgia Historic Commission would like to have them to install at the to-be-restored Ft. McAllister near Savannah.

"What we're looking for are some smoothbore Columbiad and rifled Parrott cannons," said Col. Allen P. Julian, commission member.

They will be mounted in the restored earthwork fort that successfully guarded Savannah from attack up the Great Ogeechee River.

Col. Julian thinks there are enough of the cannons in Georgia—maybe not in the houses but in barns or back yards—to install along one face of the fort.

The historic Bryan County fort was presented to the state by the International Paper Co., owners of the land, in March. The commission is currently working at its reconstruction.

GENESIS POINT

The fort is situated at Genesis Point on the right bank of the river, some 10 miles east of Richmond Hill. It was the right anchor point of the exterior line of strongly constructed earthworks built to protect Savannah from sea attacks, Col. Julian said.

Construction of the fort was begun early in 1861. By September that year, four heavy guns were mounted there. At the end of the war, 24 guns were mounted.

In addition to the guns, the river was blockaded with a row of heavy piles driven from bank to bank immediately below the port.

NARROW PASSAGE

Except for a narrow passage that was commanded by the fort's cannon (and used by blockade runners), these piles obstructed the river completely until they were removed by General Sherman's forces in December, 1864, Col. Julian reported in his history of the fort.

Confederate forces in Ft. McAllister repulsed five attacks by Union naval vessels.

The major attack was launched by the USS Montauk, an ironclad, and four gunboats on Jan. 27, 1863. The Montauk fired 35 11-inch and 61 15-inch shells at the fort, causing only minor damage.

Ft. McAllister gunners bounced 13 direct hits off the iron sides of the Montauk, also with minor damage.

The last sea attack came March 3, 1863. Horace Greeley later remarked that "from this time the Union fleets saved their ammunition by letting Ft. McAllister alone."

The fort then went 21 months without bother, until December, 1864, when General Sherman's men ended their 300-mile "march to the sea."

NORTHERN FLEET

Sherman ordered the capture of the fort to permit contact with the North fleet that carried badly needed supplies for his troops.

Ft. McAllister fell on Dec. 13, 1864, after nine Union regiments rushed the 230-man garrison. The fight ended 15 minutes later with 24 killed and 110 wounded on the Union side, and 14 killed, 21 wounded Confederates.

Tax Slashes Won't Help The Jobless, Russell Says

WINDER (AP)—Sen. Russell, concerned for men out of work, is not in favor of a federal tax cut at this time.

At home for an Easter recess from his duties in Washington, the senator said Wednesday:

"I do not favor a tax cut at this time. It will not help the man who is out of work. He'll not get anything out of it—he's not paying any taxes. A tax reduction may be necessary later on."

Taking a broad view, Russell said that he found Georgians at present deeply concerned over "the drive of the federal government to obliterate states as entities of government, take over our school system and destroy our social order by forcing integration by federal power."

The people naturally are upset, he added, over the plight of agriculture and business difficulties.

The senator reported that he found general approval of a stepped-up public works program and an expansion of international trade, but added some reservations on both.

On the former, he said that he thinks most people realize that "over the long run public works cannot be a substitute for steady employment and private enterprise."

Of the latter, he observed:

"Every sane person is in favor of an expansion of international trade. But there is increasing concern on the part of our people about some of the methods being employed by the Department of State under the guise of promoting international trade. This area is very strongly in favor of the original reciprocal trade program as contemplated by Secretary Cordell Hull, but after seeing the effect of the recent handling of the program on some of our industries, notably textiles and plywoods, many people have concluded that it is not a program of reciprocal trade but is being developed into a new method of extending economic aid."

8,000 New Jobs in State Forecast for This Year

A Georgia Power Co. official said Wednesday night that new industrial development in Georgia during 1958 is expected to be "even better than last year" and will probably provide an estimated "8,000-to-10,000 new jobs" throughout the state.

The current recession has failed to dim the "interest of Northern industries in locating plants in the South," declared Eugene Yates Jr., manager of Georgia Power's Industrial Development Division.

Yates, C. W. Curry, president of the Fourth National Bank in Columbus and president of the Georgia Bankers Assn., and Dr. Harry Brown, former assistant U.S. assistant secretary of agriculture, formed a panel on a WSB-Radio forum.

The 30-minute program, entitled "The Big Dollar: Georgia Business Looks Ahead," was sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution. The business experts were questioned by Jim Montgomery, Constitution business editor. William Fields, Constitution managing editor, served as moderator.

Curry was asked if members of the Georgia Bankers Assn., now attending a convention in Atlanta, were hazarding any guesses as to when the present recession will abate.

"If bankers had any idea as to when the recession is going to end," Curry replied, "they'd be retired capitalists instead of bankers."

Increases in the cost of living index during the current economic slowdown, Curry said, can be attributed in large part to no reductions being made in "the costs of labor."

"One of the principal costs in any item you buy—washing machines, automobiles or what-have-you—is labor," Curry said. "And as far as I know there have been no reductions in the cost of labor anywhere."

Curry said any demands for wage increases by the United Automobile Workers this spring would be "poorly timed."

"From a psychological standpoint, now is the time for automobile manufacturers to resist demands for wage boosts," Curry said.

A "closer and closer relationship between agriculture and industry" was urged by Dr. Brown, who said that few people realize that "55 per cent of employed Georgians are dependent on agriculture—either directly or indirectly."

An example of this, Brown said, is the fact that Georgia farmers last year bought "about 338 million dollars worth of equipment from industry to develop their crops."

Paris Cabinet Is Called in Tunis Crisis

Constitution State News Service

PARIS—French Premier Gaillard Wednesday called the Cabinet into an extraordinary vacation session Friday to decide whether to continue the effort to conciliate France's dispute with Tunisia or to return the issue to the United Nations Security Council.

This appeared to be the choice confronting France after Gaillard conferred for nearly six hours at his country home at Barbezieux in western France with the United States and British diplomats who have spent the last seven weeks trying to smooth over the French-Tunisian quarrel.

Participants in the talks declined to comment on the substance, but from the scanty indirect evidence available, it appeared likely that the Cabinet would be urged to try again to reach an accommodation with Tunisia that would prevent a new airing of the dispute in the security council or the general assembly.

Finest Cattle in Georgia To Be Shown Here Monday

Georgia "cowboys" and "cowgirls" will be riding herd into Atlanta next week, bringing some of the finest cattle ever raised in Georgia in for judging in the annual Georgia Fat Cattle Show.

The show, sponsored by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will be held at the Southeastern Fairgrounds at Lakewood Park. In addition to cups and ribbons, $4,000 in prize money and premiums will be offered the young cattle raisers.

Cattle will be received, weighed and checked in on Monday. Tuesday's program will include the show competition, a carcass demonstration, a livestock grading contest and a showmanship and fitting contest. The cattle will be sold on Wednesday.

Tuesday night the youngsters will be guests of Atlanta businessmen for dinner.

The boy or girl exhibiting the grand champion will receive a trophy from the governor, a banner and additional cash money for having the champion. Reserve champion exhibitor will also receive similar prizes.

Four-H Club members will get added incentive prizes offered by various breeder associations.

Show prizes for winners of 4-H Club individual classes range from $50 and ribbon for the champion to $6 for tenth place, Walton said. Owners of top animals which grade prime in the three weight classes will receive $25 each.

If a 4-H'er has the grand champion of the show he will receive an additional $70 and a banner and the governor's trophy, Walton declared. The reserve grand champion of the show will win $50 and a banner and the Georgia Livestock Association trophy.

Rounding out the list of awards which 4-H'ers may win are the first through fifth place prizes in the showmanship and fitting contest and the first through fourth place prizes in the livestock grading contest.

Regents Set 2 Junior Colleges

Augusta, Columbus Would Be Sites

The State Board of Regents Wednesday tentatively approved the addition to two new junior colleges to the University System to be located at Augusta and Columbus.

But the board laid down a number of conditions that must be met before the proposed new units can come into being.

No estimate was available of the cost of the two new units. They would be designed to meet the expanding demand for higher education in Georgia.

If approved, the Augusta and Columbus units would bring to six the number of junior colleges in the state-supported University System. They would bring to 18 the total number of units in the system.

NEW LEGISLATION

The tentative approval of the two new units was an outgrowth of legislation approved at the last session of the General Assembly clearing the way for a system of junior colleges to be under the supervision—but not a part of—the University System.

The proposed Augusta and Columbus schools would be full-fledged units of the system and not a part of the new junior college plan.

Columbus and Augusta, along with Savannah and several other Georgia cities, were vitally interested in the junior college legislation.

Conditions set by the board for the final approval of the Columbus and Augusta colleges include:

1. The communities must provide "adequate plant and campus facilities" that eventually would take care of up to 400 full-time students. If temporary facilities are provided initially, these must be replaced by permanent facilities within 24 months.

RICHMOND ACADEMY

Richmond Academy in Augusta, a city-supported junior college, would probably be converted into the University System unit under the plan. There is no exisiting junior college in Columbus.

2. The curriculum would be limited to regular junior college work in arts and sciences.

3. Each community must show evidence of potential minimum enrollment of 200 full-time students the first year, 300 the second year, and 350 the third.

4. Enrollment would be limited to day students only, meaning that no dormitory facilities would be required.

5. Both proposed junior colleges would be required to meet the standards of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

SET OF STANDARDS

The regents also instructed Chancellor Harmon W. Caldwell to submit at next month's meeting a set of standards and requirements for the establishment of new junior colleges as a part of the University System.

Caldwell was also requested to prepare for the next meeting a "suitable application" for other cities interested in setting up an institution under the new junior college program.

The act setting up the junior college program calls for state support of $300 or more per student for schools approved by the Board of Regents. Local communities would provide facilities and make further financial contribution to the support of the colleges.

Presumably, the board would ask the governor for additional funds to operate the two new junior colleges it proposes to take in as regular units of the University System.

TECH DORMITORY

In other actions Wednesday, the board:

1. Authorized Georgia Tech to buy three parcels of land on Techwood drive, NW, as a site for a dormitory to be built by the University Building Authority with funds to be borrowed from a federal housing agency.

2. Authorized the accepting of bids for the sale of 67 acres of land in Cook County which the Coastal Plain Experiment Station proposes to sell. Not less than $9,300 would be acceptable.

3. Turned down a request by Georgia State College of Business Administration that $5 be collected from each graduate for the school's alumni association as first year dues.

4. Sustained the action of President O. C. Aderhold of the University of Georgia in removing Dr. A. E. Cullison as head of the department of animal husbandry and replacing him with Dr. R. A. Long. Dr. Cullison, who is still on the department faculty, appealed Aderhold's action to the board.

Cold, Rain Hurt State's Business

lot of Peach County folks happy. By assuring a more-than-sufficient dormant period for the trees, it raised hopes for "the biggest and best" peach crop in years.

BUENA VISTA — "That cold spell killed quite a few young chickens," hardware store operator Herman Brady pointed out, "and that hurts, because our area has gone into the commercial broiler growing business in a big way."

MONTEZUMA — When those Florida vegetables were killed by the freeze, a retailer noted, some of our business was too, because there wasn't enough work to keep all the people at our frozen foods plant employed.

THOMASVILLE — That crop freeze sure hurt our farmers market, commented a trucker, "to say nothing of the hauling business. It was rough!"

WAYCROSS — Some maintenance shop layoffs by the Atlantic Coast Line were attributed to a substantial cut in the freight volume out of Florida.

BRUNSWICK — "The tourist business sure didn't come here this season," said Mrs. W. Z. Saskill in the Crown Court office. "I'd just as soon freeze at home as in Florida," growled a disgruntled motorist headed back to Ohio.

DARIEN — "Business is off here," explained druggist Rogers, "because it's been too wet to work in the woods. But the weather helped my prescription and remedy business."

SAVANNAH — Almost all work halted at the more than half-dozen fertilizer plants that normally employ over 1,000 workers. "The farmer's a month late planting this year," said the manager of one, "and that's postponed a lot of fertilizer sales."

COBBTOWN—"They're waiting for a shipment of tobacco plants that was due in yesterday," a service station operator said nodding toward a group of Tattnall, Toombs and Candler County farmers gathered at the intersection. "Plants are hard to get this year. Lot were drowned in Florida."

FITZGERALD—"Our volume's been going down gradually since August," said E. M. Nix, manager of McClellan's 5 & 10, "and the first quarter of 1958 is off about 8 per cent from a year ago. I think it's mostly the weather, though."

CORDELE — Jake Roobin of Roobin's department store said he was prepared for a drop in January, but it came out equal to the same 1957 month. "Then," he added, "the bottom fell out in February. I hope it was just because of the weather."

Roobin thus summed up the feeling of just about every retailer in Georgia who allowed that sales so far this year aren't up to snuff (which is nearly all of them).

Bad weather is one thing, but a recession—"why it just CAN'T be that!"

TOMORROW: New plant spending indicates otherwise.

Christianity More Than Doctrine

QUESTION: Is there not more to religion than technical theory and doctrine? Is there not also sentimental understanding? Did Thomas make a grammatical error when he said: "My Lord and my God?" —P. N. H.

ANSWER: Indeed there is more to Christianity than technical theory and doctrine! "The Kingdom of God is righteous, peace and joy," says the Bible. It is unfortunate that so many people quibble over shades of difference in non-essentials.

I have worked with many of the major Christian churches, and I find them in historical agreement on most of the cardinal doctrines. They agree that mankind needs a Savior, they proclaim that Christ died for our sins, they believe in the fellowship of believers, in the personal return of Christ, in a hell to shun and a heaven to gain.

No, Thomas did not make a grammatical error when he said: "My Lord and my God." Indeed, in his confession, he touched on the most vital point of Christian teaching, and that is that we can all know Christ, personally. It is not enough to know Him as God —high, lofty, and supreme deity. We must know Him in that personal, vital way that makes Him Lord of our lives. When it dawned on Thomas that Jesus was alive forevermore, that He was indeed and in truth all He had claimed to be, there and then, he crowned Him Lord of his life. Doctrine and technical theologies are not nearly so important as having a transforming, personal experience with the living Christ.

Electron Alarm Signals If Car Follows Too Close

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

DETROIT—The Ford Motor Co. has developed an electronic device for autos that flashes a warning signal to the driver behind if his car gets too close.

Engineers for Ford and the City of Detroit said widespread use of such a device would be a valuable safety aid in preventing rear-end collisions.

The new development was announced as the results of a survey of Detroit expressway accidents were disclosed Wednesday. These showed that 57.5 per cent of the accidents in 1956 were rear-end collisions. The year-long study was made jointly by Ford and the Detroit Department of Streets and Traffic.

Henry S. Mika, a supervising research engineer for Ford, explained that the warning device was about the size of a camera and could be mounted in the trunk or elsewhere in the car.

A prototype, which the company plans to demonstrate Thursday to the Governors Committee on Highway Safety, has been designed for use at night. A small eye pointed to the rear picks up the headlight illumination of the auto behind and computes the distance and the rate at which the following vehicle is closing on the car ahead.

If the car behind gets too close, Mika said, the device trips a switch on the car ahead and flashes the red brake signals warning the driver behind that he is too close.

Dulles added that the teams manning such posts must be mobile, so as to establish whether any explosions detected were for peaceful or for weapons purposes.

After his news conference the President walked to the White House rose garden to talk to 200 delegates to an International Aeronautical Federation conference who spent the day here.

"I am perfectly certain that most of the world's troubles would be over and we could use all of the great inventions of science to human betterment and improvement rather than in the attempt to destroy ourselves," he told the delegates, if the peoples of the world could only get to know one another.

"Governments are far more stupid than are their people," the President observed. The peoples should meet, talk and exchange visits, he said.

Deficit Soaring, Budget Director Warns Congress

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — President Eisenhower's budget chief says it looks as though the federal deficit this year will be 3½ times as big as anticipated. He advised against hasty antirecession measures.

Budget Director Maurice Stans sailed into Congress Wednesday for spending programs which he said sidetrack any hope of balanced budgets for 1959 and possibly several more years.

"It's been truthfully said that unbalanced national budgets are like pants without suspenders. You can't keep them up forever," he warned.

In a blunt accounting of the government's financial situation, Stans dealt out figures and arguments to bolster Eisenhower's assertion Wednesday that emergency measures can wait awhile.

BENEFIT CLAIMS RISE IN U.S.

1 of Every 6 Workers Is Jobless in Detroit

By A. H. RASKIN

(Copyright 1958 by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—Unemployment insurance claims rose in major industrial cities last week. The biggest increase was recorded in Detroit, already the production center hardest hit by the recession.

The figures indicated a continued rise in the number of jobless workers since the mid-March total of 5,198,000 reported by the Census Bureau Tuesday.

In New York and most other large cities, the increase was relatively slight. But the full extent of idleness was masked by the disappearance from the insurance lists of thousands of thousands of workers who had been jobless so long that they had exhausted their benefit rights.

A special survey by the Michigan Employment Security Commission showed that one Detroit worker in six was now idle and that the ratio was almost as high for all of Michigan, heartland of the automobile industry.

The commission reported that 265,000 Detroiters were unemployed, as of April 1. This was 17.4 per cent of the labor force and represented a rise of 17,000 over the state agency's revised estimate for March 15.

For all of Michigan unemployment at the beginning of this month was put at 450,000, or 15.5 per cent of the labor force. This was up 35,000 from mid-March.

No signs of the normal spring pick-up in employment were reflected in job insurance reports from other parts of the country. In several large cities initial claims showed a sharper rise than continued claims from those already out of work.

A meteoric upsurge in claims was reported in Philadelphia, but officials said technical factors were more responsible for the rise than any sudden onset of unemployment. Continue claims for last week totaled 100,065, a jump of 11.9 per cent.

Pittsburgh, capital of the steel industry, had an increase of 3,650 workers on the insurance rolls. This brought the claims total for last week to 88,55, or nearly triple the figure a year ago.

Los Angeles unemployment went up 3.2 per cent, raising the insurance figure to 134,056. San Fransicso showed a 1.2 per cent rise to 51,039 and Chicago wkas up 1 per cent to 12,768. The figure for Boston rose only 162, to a total of 16,576.

A STORY of ONE of AMERICA'S HUGE BUSINESSES

ARE HIGH PRICES STRANGLING THE PAINT INDUSTRY?

Is the inflationary trend of paint prices necessary? Not based on material cost versus sales price! According to the U. S. Department of Labor, paint prices increased 18 times as much as the material used in making it from September, 1947-1957. Linseed and soya oils, primary paint ingredients, are actually down 44% and 39%!

Is labor responsible? Not! Automation and new equipment advances make it possible to achieve even lower unit production cost than in 1947, even with increased hourly wages!

My company eliminates or reduces 18 profits and costs that amount to more than cost of the paint itself. Then I share all these savings with my huge family of friends!

Yes, at any branch of mine I give you a free can of fine paint with every one you buy — gallon or quart — at no extra charge. $4.98 gallon up.

CITY HALL NEWS

$6,319,332 In Building Permits Let

Permits for construction valued at $6,319,332, including a $1,125,000 Atlanta police headquarters and a $4,175,000 health building for the state, were issued for the first eight days of April, William R. Wofford, building inspector, said Wednesday.

Construction valued at $9,655,330 was authorized in April last year and Wofford expects this month to far exceed that of the same month a year ago.

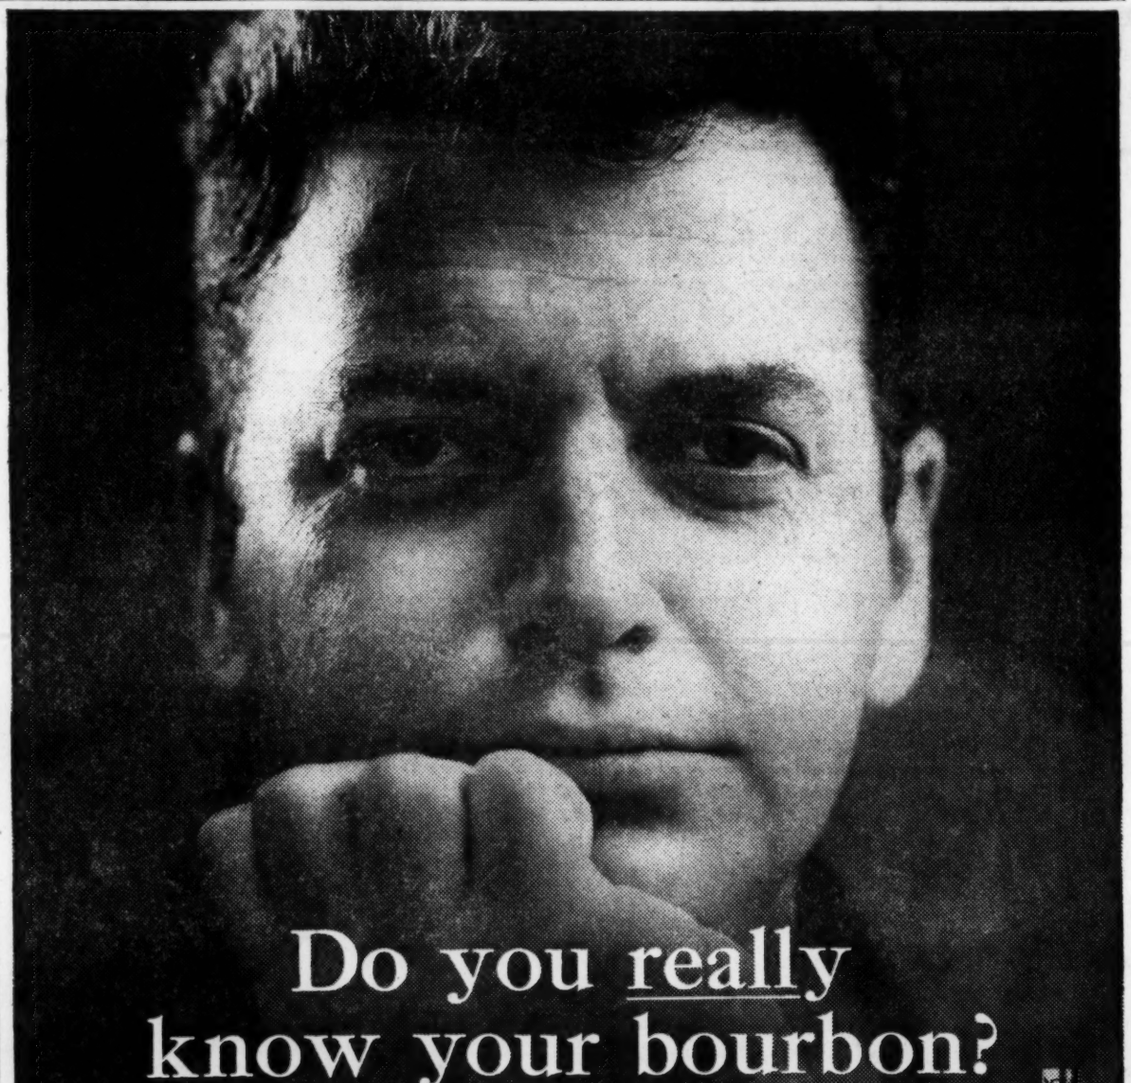

Abco Builders will construct the police station, which was planned by Kenneth Williams, Architect, while the health structure at 47 Trinity Ave., SW, will be built by George A. Fuller from plans prepared by A. Thomas Bradbury & Associates.

Mayor's Guest

Mayor Hartsfield and Purchasing Agent Ernest Brewer were hosts Wednesday to R. E. Shillady of Boston, president of the National Association of Purchasing agents, and C. C. Sisk of Mascot, Tenn., vice president. The officials called at the executive suites at the city hall accompanied by a large number of members of the Georgia chapter of the national group.

In Advanced Courses

An estimated nine per cent of Atlanta high school students are taking advanced mathematics and science courses, Miss Ira Jarrell, superintendent, said. She said the figure compares favorably with other cities of the nation. A total of 303 out of the 3,235 seniors are taking trigonometry, the highest match course, and 665 of the 7,032 juniors and seniors are taking physics, she added.

Fulton Rules Out Boost In Taxes To Aid Grady

people were required to operate the new hospital.

Fraser said that Fulton County was in "very good shape" financially, having ended last year with $2,800,000 carryover. He said that the whole county was in a period of change, and as "this year passes we will know more and more about costs."

"We would like to go through this year without increasing taxes," Fraser said. He suggested that the authority use a depreciation fund of $895,000 which it had on hand to meet the estimated deficit.

Spalding said that this money had already been allocated by the authority as a building fund to construct a new Negro nurses' quarters and to remodel the old Grady into a modern nurses' home. He told the assembled commissions that the nurses' facilites were an absolute necessity.

Fraser said that the county would have to change its tax rate in 1959 anyway since bond interests would have to be met from taxes beginning then. He suggested that the commissioners wait until then to raise the hospital tax levy to five mills, "if necessary at that time."

Authority member John Sibley suggested that the chairmen of the authority and the commission get together and figure out some way for the authority to meet its obligations, if the commission would agree that it "would stand behind" the authority in the expenditure of the money necessary for operation of the hospital.

DeKalb County Commission also met with the group. Spalding said that DeKalb actually would not be involved in any tax increase, as its share of the hospital expenses would amount to only 12 to 13 per cent of the total, a figure which could be met at the present tax rate.

FOUND DEAD—AUSTIN, Tex.—Major James H. Doolittle Jr., 38, son of the famed Tokyo raider, Lt. Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, was found dead here at his office at Bergstrom Air Force Base Wednesday. He had been shot through the right temple with a .38-caliber service pistol. which was found near his body.

Only Half Baxley Work Was Where Specified, Leftwich Says

to be $213,792.46. He said additional work not covered by contracts totaled $41,777.45.

Leftwich admitted Wednesday that actually half, or perhaps less, of the $241,000 worth of work called for in the contracts was found in places specified in the contracts.

J. O. Bacon, state highway maintenance engineer, also arrived in Baxley Wednesday to investigate the paving of streets here.

Although numerous streets have been paved by state highway maintenance crews since 1955, records authorizing the work have not been found.

Bacon said he will question A. W. Baxley, superintendent of the special asphalt crew here, about the paving. Baxley is an uncle of Mayor Dunn.

Leftwich explained Friday his investigation was hampered by some missing construction records. He said Harry K. Emanuel and Jack Tomberlin, former highway engineers at Baxley, told him the records disappeared.

One batch of records disappeared when a building was torn down, Leftwich said he was told, and the other records just vanished.

Meanwhile, Emanuel and Tomberlin have been fired and Baxley residents say they know of no building having been torn down.

E. E. Miles, who has operated a cotton warehouse in Baxley for the past 44 years, swore Wednesday that some curbing and gutter remeasured by the highway department for its Friday report was put down by convicts.

"The convicts were working under the supervision of a Mr. Coleman," Miles said in an affidavit. "Mayor J. M. (Buck) Dunn told me at the time the curb and gutter work was going on that he thought I should give Mr. Coleman a little donation because Mr. Coleman was working long hours in cold weather to get the job done. I gave Mr. Coleman $75."

Miles said he gave the money for that reason and because the curbing and gutter was located across the street from a bus station owned by Miles.

"I have seen State Highway Department trucks hauling base for use on several different streets in the City of Baxley since 1955," Miles said. "I also have seen State Highway Department machinery spreading asphalt and rock on several different streets in the city. . . ."

In another affidavit, H. G. Miles, son of E. E. Miles, told of state equipment and employes working under contracts for which Mayor Dunn was paid.

"Early in 1956, Norman Overstreet, an employe of Mayor J. M. (Buck) Dunn, came to me and said Mayor Dunn sent him to ask if I would let the city have some dirt for basing City of Baxley streets," H. G. Miles said. "I agreed to sell him some dirt. . . .

"A short time later, trucks began hauling dirt off my property. Some of the trucks were State Highway Department trucks . . . driven by convicts and by regular highway department employes," H. G. Miles said.

Miles said some of the other trucks were owned by the City of Baxley.

"A State Highway Department dragline was used some of the time to load dirt into trucks that were hauling dirt off my property," H. G. Miles said. "I saw Snip Davis, state highway employe, operate the state highway dragline on my property."

Here are some of the discrepancies Chief Branch said he spotted in Leftwich's report:

1. Leftwich allowed $592 for removing 740 feet of culvert pipe off Tippins street. "There never was any pipe there," Branch said.

2. Leftwich allowed $18,188.71 under contract No. SAP-1971-A (3) (actually paid out under the contract was $22,977) for curb and gutter on North Main street and cleaning out two miles of Davis Dunn Canal. Branch said convicts laid the curb and gutter and cleaned the canal. (The only payments made by the city to the Department of Corrections under any of the state-city contracts were made under this contract. They total approximately $1,300 and there is no record at City Hall to show whether this was supposed to be for canal cleaning or for curb and gutter work.)

3. Leftwich allowed $1,722.83 for laying of pipe in front of an icehouse on Lucky street. Branch said, "Some of that pipe has been there for many, many years. The rest of it was laid before 1955."

4. Leftwich allowed $1,524.24 for pipe on South Park avenue. Branch said the pipe was there before 1955.

5. Leftwich allowed $387.50 for two catch-basins on Penneman street, $775 for four catch-basins on McCrory street and $834.92 for pipe and catch-basins on Brobston street. Branch said convicts did all this work.

Hughel Harrison, assistant attorney general, was still on the scene Wednesday investigating Baxley road projects. Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook also was reported en route here.

Mote in His Eye

MANORHAVEN, N.Y. (UP) — The village board of Manorhaven Wednesday ordered building inspector Phillip Pearl to tear down his tool shed. The trustees of this Long Island town ruled that the shed violated the building code.

Cuban Police Crushes Uprising in Havana

Havana crisis. Explosives and gasoline bombs were tossed about.

Rebels seized and briefly held Cuba's biggest radio and TV stations here and played records telling Cubans that Castro's general strike was in effect. They called for the people to rise in arms against Batista.

Not many rose — perhaps not more than 100.

Fighting centered at the old port district of Havana.

The rebel show was all over before 2 p.m.

Evidence that the abortive movement here was the misfired signal for a general revolt throughout Cuba came from Matanzas, 63 miles to the east.

Rebels there also invaded and temporarily occupied a radio station. They appealed to Cubans to strike and rise against the Batista regime.

Three persons were killed in a Matanzas shooting. A school was burned. No one there answered the strike call.

Scanty reports out of Oriente Province, hotbed of the Castro rebellion, indicated no unusual activity there.

Two American newsmen intending to board a plane for Santiago, Oriente's provincial capital, were arrested at Havana's airport but quickly released. Police did not identify them.

A Cubana Airlines Viscount plane scheduled for Santiago turned westward instead. It was reported to have landed at Merida Mexico. It was not determined here whether it carried passengers or only the crew.

One of the casualties of the day's action at Gunanbacao, across Havana Bay, was an engineer for the Shell Oil Co. He was wounded by a hand grenade. His identity was not immediately learned.

Army military, etc 11th graf ta64-65

Two rebels were killed in an apparent attempt to assassinate Education Minister Vincente Cauce, who took his cabinet post just four weeks ago.

The two were shot down by the minister's chief bodyguard as they invaded the ministry building in Old Havana. It was not established whether Cauce was in his office at the time.

A former director of education, Cauce became education minister March 12. He succeeded Jose Perez Cabera, who resigned on the grounds of ill health.

President Offers Remedy For Ending Slump: Buy!

he said, is "a thing which you would hope would not be occurring." But he said he had looked into the history of depressions and found this was more normal than

It was a question as to "what people should do to make the recession recede" that brought out the suggestion to buy—anything.

Then, attaching strings a mo- abnormal.

ment later, the President added: "Well, I don't say you should buy carelessly. I said to you the other day, let's be selective in our buying; let's take things we need.

"Look here, once America just buys the things it wants, our people, our manufacturers, will be busy making those things."

In line with past expressions of confidence that the recession is at or near bottom, Eisenhower said he thinks there are real grounds for hoping the country will be on the upgrade one of these days.

Then, he said, apprehensions will be stilled about the possibility that America's political position abroad will be endangered by the business decline at home.

Eisenhower covered the econom- showed a rare inclination to go to the mat with Congress on his defense reorganization plan. In clipped infections and forceful terms he let it be known that this is one field in which the former general thinks he has expert qualifications.

"It just happens," he said, "I have got a little bit more experience in military organization and the directing of unified forces than anyone else on the active list."

Laying on the emphasis, the President said there is always great horror and alarm about any reforms—even the income tax when it was imposed in 1913.

He said there are built-in constitutional guards against establishing a military czar and built-in lobbying, prejudices and misunderstandings surrounding the program.

As for opponents in Congress, he said, "I don't care how strong they are or how numerous they are. Here is something for the United States. Here is something that is necessary."

Pledging a hard fight to get the plan through Congress, Eisenhower said he would get on the air as often as the television companies would let him, and keep it up until the people understand that their pocketbooks and safety are involved.

The news conference broadened out to such other topics as:

POLITICS — No, Eisenhower said, he wouldn't care to assess Republican chances in the 1958 congressional election campaign.

In response to another question, whether his political advisers might have suggested that a summit conference with Russia would be useful in the campaign, the President said he didn't think he ever had heard anyone talk about that.

2 Firemen Hurt Battling Blaze; Worker Killed

AKRON, Ohio—One employe was killed and two firemen injured when this Alside, Inc. plant was destroyed by fire Wednesday. The loss was estimated at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

Firemen battling the blaze were threatened by continuing explosions of paint and thinner. The company manufactures aluminum siding for houses.

4 Arrested In Holdup Gang Here

Six men were identified Wednesday in a crime gang which for three months has preyed on stores over the Atlanta area, police said.

Four are under arrest, Sgt. Clinton Chafin said, and two others have fled the state.

Charges against all six, including at least 11 counts of armed robbery, will be presented before the Fulton County Grand Jury next Tuesday, officers said.

The four held for investigation of robbery, all Negroes, were listed as Taylor Wallace, 26, of 625 Cooper St., SW; Melvin Giles, 20, of 97 Taliaferro St.; John Lee Mann, 25, of 867 Hunter St., SW, and James Lee Jones, 24, of 138 Chestnut St., NW.

Detectives said the largest single haul was on Feb. 4 when two of the group robbed an Atlanta Constitution district circulation office at 890 Simpson St., NW, of $2,913.

The four under arrest already have admitted participating in eight robberies, detectives related. They estimated the total number of stores victimized will number at least 12 and possible twice that many.

Jones, who was released from prison Feb. 8 and began operations two weeks later, was identified as ringleader of the group. Detectives said he recruited gang members from those who were out of work and others attracted to "easy money."

JUST INTUITION

Woman Hides, Nabs Thief, 17

Two East Point youths who fell prey to a woman's intuition Wednesday face four counts of burglary.

Lt. H. L. Stanley and Det. L. D. Shipp of the East Point police, said the two—one 17 and the other 16—were charged with breaking into 10 establishments.

On the latest trip Tuesday, the 17-year-old, listed as Robert Bedford of 3281 Bachelor Ave., East Point, was captured by Mrs. Iva Johnson, 47, who had decided to sleep overnight in the station at 1203 Virginia Ave., East Point.

Mrs. Johnson of Mulga, Ala., whose son, James E. Johnson, operates the station, mentioned to police she intended to wait for the prowler.

"We tried to dissuade her," Stanley said. "In the first place we felt the undertaking would be dangerous. In the second, the station had been broken into Monday and a burglar seldom returns the next night."

Mrs. Johnson, an expert marksman, laughed at the prospects of danger. She said she hid in the supply room of the station at closing time Tuesday and 5 minutes later the youth climbed in through a window.

"I held a gun on him and told him not to move," Mrs. Johnson said.

A son-in-law, Melvin Pope of 3421 Harrison Rd., East Point, who drove by the station to see if Mrs. Johnson was all right, found her holding the suspect at gun point and telephoned police.

"The police didn't think he would come back before Thursday," Mrs. Johnson said. "I did."

After questioning Bedford, police rounded up the 16-year-old and turned him over to juvenile authorities. They said the two got approximately $300 from four trips to the station.

R. L. Peeples Named Head Of X-Ray Group

Richard L. Peeples has been elected president of the Atlanta Society of X-Ray Technicians.

Peeples is a registered technician (RT) at Crawford Long Hospital. Other new officers: Miss Anne Biles, RT, Emory University Hospital, vice president; Miss Rebecca Bull, RT, Grady Memorial Hospital, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Patricia White, RT, Piedmont Hospital, corresponding secretary.

The officers were installed by Manuel A. Allen, chief technician at Emory University Hospital and a past president of the Atlanta Society.

Gen. Petrov Dies in Moscow

MOSCOW (UP) — The newspaper Pravda Wednesday announced the death of Gen. Ivan E. Petrov, 62, a Communist Party member for 40 years. It said Petrov joined the party in 1918. During World War II, he helped organize the defense of Odessa and Sevastopol and commanded the North Caucasian and 4th Ukranian fronts. He had held several high posts in the ministry of defense since the war. The obituary was signed by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other high Soviet officials.

TV, Sputniks Open Doors to Books

By ELIZABETH MORGAN

The Sputnik influence that's taking hold of the country has affected Johnny's and Mary's reading habits, too.

This trend is the observation of Mrs. Katherine Young, one of two children's librarians at the Atlanta Public Library.

There was a well-remembered time when Johnny and Mary were falling down on the reading job. But, according to Mrs. Young, the bookless lull is over. Besides Sputnik, Mrs. Young credits television as a surging influence on youngsters' reading habits.

A few years back, when the TV set was shiny and new in 'most every home, that action-packed eye was tagged as a culprit in diverting children from books.

"SO INTRIGUED"

These days, said the librarian, the small-fry readers "just want every science book they can get hold of. They're all so intrigued with everything about space — the sun, moon, stars, rockets, missiles, space travel to planets. Even teachers of the little bitty ones call up and ask, 'What have you got on satellites for the second grade?'

"Well, there just isn't much material on satellites for second graders."

This craving, too, will pass, thinks Mrs. Young. "There always have been a certain number of youngsters interested in space matters," she declared, "but after we get used to Sputniks, the large majority will begin reading other subjects."

GREAT VARIETY

For a while, she added, the novelty of television probably did keep boys and girls from reading. But now that many of the younger readers have grown up with TV, they turn to a great variety of book matter. And television, apparently, has stimulated a tremendous interest in factual reading.

This small-fry interest follows right along with the adult reading pattern of today. Said Mrs. Young, "Although we have nearly all the worthwhile fact books for children, we can't supply the demand." And when the youngsters are genuinely interested in a subject, she observed, they read and understand books classified far over their heads.

Of course, the standard fare still ranks high in children's library traffic. "Some little girls want fairy tales," commented the librarian happily, "and we're always glad for that." The little boys like folk tales about American heroes. "Sometimes we're afraid that so much emphasis on fact keeps them from enjoying the fantasy so important in living," she added.

PARTIAL TO ANIMALS

The young children like stories about trucks, trains and other machinery. And, of course, they're always partial to animals.

In the third and fourth grades, youngsters like humorous, imaginative stories of heroes or heroines who get into troublesome situations and then emerge victorious. Mrs. Young rattled off some present-day favorites — Freddie the Pig, the Space Cat, Miss Pickerall — whose travels and adventures are not bound by this universe. Once again, the space influence has crept into literature.

As they get older, of course, their interests spread to other subjects in living. Fourth and fifth graders like mysteries, she said, and added, "They're just crazy about them, even though some are not good literature. I don't think it hurts them to read poorly written books—I did, too, when I was that age—unless they become limited in their tastes."

FAMILY STORIES

Girls that age like family stories, she said, and from the time these budding women dream through the sixth grade until they graduate from high school, romance is on their minds. "Love stories, that's all they want," laughed the librarian.

Mary Stolz, she said, writes the best stories of this ilk because her material deals with adolescent problems. "Most of the books are quite similar," she added, "but the girls don't care as long as they're concerned with romance and popularity."

Meanwhile, the boys are "devouring" science fiction as well as nonfiction and sports stories. Mrs. Young recommended John Tunis as an outstanding writer of sports books for the adolescent.

But, she concluded — Sputniks, television, age, sex, interests, fads and fashions notwithstanding—one author's books appeal to all ages. She explained, "Children from 3 years old to all the lawyers in my husband's office read the Dr. Seuss books."

Dixie Women Tough, Tender?

There was a query in the mail the other day from a mid-western editor who is considering a piece about the Southern woman. Since his letter came I have toted it back and forth on the bus and mulled over it at odd moments before going to sleep and upon awakening.

What is The Southern Woman?

It's a pretty interesting question and the only thing that worries me is that I may be too provincial to answer it.

I know so few women who aren't Southern. How do you know what qualities are Southern and what are simply inherent in the female animal?

How does the Southern woman differ from her Western or Eastern or Northern sister?

Oh, there are lovely generalizations that most of us were reared on. Southern girls are legendary charmers and, of course, some are and some aren't. Southern housewives have been credited with turning out delectable, imaginative meals . . . and washing their mops in the kitchen sink!

There is the Southern woman of literature and here again you can pay your money and take your choice: Scarlett or Melanie; Amanda of Tennessee Williams' "Glass Menagerie" or Ada of Erskine Caldwell's "Tobacco Road." We have, it seems, all kinds.

When I was a child Southern girls—and perhaps girls everywhere—were admonished to be "ladies." And whatever a lady was, there were two things she was not: "Common" or "tough."

I don't know about commonness (it still seems like a dirty word to me!) but the older I get the more I admire the toughness in the women I know. Ellen Glasgow called it a "vein of iron." Margaret Mitchell called it a will to survive. It is not, of course, what Muv meant when she spoke of toughness, which was, I suppose, an outer display of bluster and bad manners. The kind of toughness I mean is the kind possessed by the gentlest, prettiest, daintiest ladies you know—and it might be further defined as energy, drive, steadfastness and courage.

You find it in the so-called magnolia set and in the blessed cracker or share-cropper contingent. You find it in the Martha Berrys and the Jacqueline Cochrans. Two frail old ladies I know who dwell back of white columns with the dim portraits of distinguished ancestors and the dusty porcelains and fading Aubussons of another period, are militant fighters for political reforms, decent schools and adequate housing for all people in their town. Local politicians will testify to their toughness.

The same never-say-die thread of spunk runs through the backbone of a Negro woman I know. Daughter of a slave, she never got the education she wanted but, as she put it, she "scrubbed floors all the way from Miami to New York and back" to send four children through college. Today she reads everything she can get her hands on, writes poetry, visits members of her race who are ill and in prison and is campaigning tirelessly to combat the high incidence of second illegitimate births in Negro families by establishing homes similar to the Florence Crittenton homes for unwed white mothers.

Tough? Members of her own race have bucked her on many campaigns but she doesn't give up.

Those who contend that the South is still a pioneer region may account for this vigor and vitality in some of our women. We still have our way to make in the wilderness. We're not many generations removed from the ox wagons that brought us here.

Now somebody will write in and say we're lazy, pampered and decadent, living on dreams of past glory. And that may be true, too. As I said, we seem to have all kinds. But I'd be interested in hearing what you think? Who, what, is The Southern Woman?

Let's Go Marketing

Spring Brings Flock Of Tasty Treats

By VIRGINIA DYSARD
Constitution Food Editor

Spring's treats are coming to market in all shapes, sizes and colors. And as sure as the supply becomes larger there is going to be a dip in prices, something that every budget shopper is looking forward to.

Some of the vegetables that have already come a long way are green beans, squash and new potatoes. All these are much cheaper, of better quality and more abundant.

The local greens are, of course, better than ever and need a high place on the shopping list.

"BEST BUY"

A "best buy" is in carrots, reports Mrs. Betty Alexander, extension consumer information specialist. They are cheap and good, as are the green onions right now. Cabbage has eased down in price as new areas are beginning to produce. Lettuce, too, is attractively priced and in good supply. Fresh asparagus is a true spring treat and is available at pleasing prices.

Bananas are plentiful and steady in price and should be used in the meal from the beginning to the end. On the scarce side are all citrus fruits, apples and grapes. Enjoy them now, for soon the present supplies will be gone, and prices will be out of reach of most food budgets.

Avocados, becoming more popular every season, are reasonable in price, while pineapple shopping is good too. If the weather doesn't take a turn for the worse, strawberries can be expected in the markets along with a few cantaloupes from Cuba. Lemons are a little cheaper.

MEAT PRICES

Reduced marketing of most types of livestock have increased prices of most meat cuts during the past several months. There is probably a record number of cattle on feed, but they are not expected to come to market for several weeks, and so there will be a delay before prices go down. Stew beef and short ribs, however, do rate attention.

Pork chops are featured here and there this week, and bacon and picnic hams are good choices. The warming weather brings with it veal time, and veal roasts carry reasonable price tags. Don't forget lamb as an entree for lunch or dinner.

Broiler supplies are adequate at the same prices. From now on, fryer supplies will pick up considerably, but so will the demand as warmer weather encourages barbecuing.

Banana bran bread is one way to utilize the plentiful fruit now on the market.

BANANA BRAN BREAD

- ¼ cup butter
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 cup bran
- 1½ cups crushed bananas, about 4 medium - sized bananas mashed with fork
- 2 tblsps. water
- ¾ tsp. vanilla
- ¾ cup chopped nut meats (optional)
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 2 tsps. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ tsp. soda

Cream butter and sugar. Beat in egg, stir in bran. Combine bananas, water and vanilla, and add to butter-sugar mixture. Stir in nut meats. Sift flour before measuring. Resift with baking powder, salt, and soda. Add the sifted ingredients to the butter mixture. Stir until blended only. Bake the bread in a greased 8x4 loaf pan lined with waxed paper in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for about 50 minutes.

Why Do You Eat Too Much?

By IDA JEAN KAIN

A wise psychiatrist has stated that, by and large, those who try to relieve tension and anxiety by eating tend to put on excess weight, and those who react to these states by temporary loss of appetite do not have a weight problem.

All right, what do you do to let off steam? Do you whip into housecleaning or change the living room furniture around? When things upset you, do you get out of the house and walk, or splurge on a new spring bonnet to give your spirits a lift? Or do you turn to food? In other words, do you use food as an emotional outlet?

If you take out your frustrations in physical action, you burn calories. On the contrary, if you turn to food to appease a hunger not actually caused by a lack of food, this practice slowly and insidiously creates another problem — overweight. However, it's not always easy to link the cause with the effect.

You may realize you nibble when nervous and yet not be aware of the underlying cause. When you ferret out the circumstances under which you tend to overeat, you are in a better position to counteract and change the pattern.

As a starter, analyze under what set of circumstances you feel excessively hungry. Many young mothers find they gain weight in bad weather when the children stay in. A homemaker found that it was when the family was late for meals that she lost control and abandoned all dieting efforts. A young girl who put on 20 excess pounds almost without being aware of it finally realized she had been turning to food to assuage her loneliness. A would-be dieter who felt left out at parties faced the fact that she hurried home and ate until she felt surfeited.

Many dieters have found that by keeping a Diet Diary they gain enlightenment. If you mark down every bit of food eaten, and parallel this record by also recording the circumstances that exist when you feel the urge to overeat or to eat at odd hours, this may reveal the pattern.

'Queen of the Beatties' Is Gem of a Designer

By ANNIE LOU HARDY

"A designing woman with many admirable qualities" is the way Mrs. George Beattie Jr. teasingly describes her mother-in-law, Mrs. George Beattie Sr. of Cleveland, Ohio, who was here for a recent visit.

The eighth woman in the United States to pass the rigid test as a certified gemologist, Mrs. Beattie Sr. owns and manages a custom jewel shop in Cleveland.

Hence the "designing woman" epithet.

However, that is just one of the many facets to her delightful personality, each of which sparkles like the gems she displays in her shop window.

MUSICIAN

She is a gifted musician, having been in demand as a singer and pianist following her graduation from Lake Erie College. She is an artist both with her pencil and her needle. And she is a lecturer of note on such subjects as "The Romance of Precious Stones," "Precious Stones of the Bible," and "Precious Stones Are Flowers of the Mineral Kingdom."

Following her marriage, Mrs. Beattie reared a family of five—there are eight grandchildren, she is quick to say—and it was not until her younger daughter was in college that she thought of entering the business world.

"The war was on and my husband needed a bookkeeper at his shop, George Beattie, Inc.," she said. "I knew nothing about bookkeeping, but an instructor came in three nights a week and helped me until I learned."

UNDER THE SPELL

Once in the shop, she fell quickly under the spell of the precious stones and wanted to know all about them—their origin, their romance, their value.

So she began a correspondence course with the American Gem Society which then had its Eastern Laboratory in Boston. At the end of the course she went to Boston for her exam. However, to become a certified gemologist, she had to go to headquarters of the society in Los Angeles for the final test.

"The first day I had to identify 20 stones," said Mrs. Beattie, a gay and enthusiastic woman with expressive hands and a charming sense of humor. "You have to be 100 per cent correct, and I missed one."

The second day Mrs. Beattie was given 20 more stones for identification and came through with flying colors. However, she modestly disclaims any credit.

GOLDSMITH TO QUEEN

"I come from a long line of artists and craftsmen," she explained, "for one of my Scottish ancestors opened a gem shop in 1575, and his grandson became goldsmith to Queen Mary. This grandson was the first to close the crown—it was always an open circlet until then."

The crowning touch of her career as a gemologist came perhaps when she was awarded the jewelry "Oscar" in 1956 for a pendant she created.

A most unusual design in platinum, it features the atomic symbol of three concentric circles set with 44 baguette diamonds, 45 brilliant-cut stones, one topaz, one emerald, one sapphire and one ruby.

As winner of the award, Mrs. Beattie appeared on Arlene Francis' show and several other New York television programs.

STAIR CARPET

"Ask her about the stair carpet she is making," interpolated Mrs. Beattie Jr., who is one of her most ardent admirers and has nicknamed her Queenie because she is "Queen Bee of the Beatties."

"Oh, it's nothing, answered her mother-in-law modestly. "Just some hooked panels I pick up at random—one for each step with the birth date of each child and grandchild worked in. I have made all the risers different, with the four seasons depicted in flowers, or a bit of family history, a proverb or a lesson for the grandchildren woven in."

"She also dyes all the wool she uses because it's the only way she can get just the shades she wants," asserted her daughter-in-law.

When asked if there were still other talents she possessed, Mrs. Beattie dismissed the subject characteristically.

"Just too many strings to my bow. A jack at all trades and good at none."

Group's President Visits Gold Star Mothers Here

Georgia contains a great potentiality of membership which has not been cultivated, according to the national president of the American Gold Star Mothers.

Mrs. Maude E. Fry of Grand Rapids, Mich., in Atlanta to attend the convention of the state group, emphasized the need for members to carry on the work of the nationwide organization.

"We are not a sad group and when we meet we do not cry and moan over our right to membership. We don't think of what has been. We think, talk and plan of what we can do for the men and women, unlike our children, who came back from the wars," she said.

"There is no other organization in the nation in which members may meet together and have the courage to cry or to laugh, and have the sympathetic understanding of all."

The American Gold Star Mothers is composed of women who lost a son or daughter in World War I, World War II or the Korean War. Mrs. Fry's son was Emerson Brown, who enlisted in the Navy at 16 and was killed at 18 while on duty in the Mediterranean.

"Our object is to do what we can to help those who came back from service," continued Mrs. Fry. "That is why I said that we do not carry our grief on our sleeves, so to speak. We are trying to make patients in VA hospitals live a happier life."

The women work in recreation areas, in the hospital libraries and do escort work. The latter is especially needed for it entails taking patients to hospital chapels, or to any area where they can be "escorted."

On her first visit here, Mrs. Fry said she is going from here to a state meeting in Kansas. The national convention of the 25,000-member organization is set for June in Denver.

McGill To Describe Rickenbacker Crash

"Captain Rickenbacker Dead" is the headline on a newspaper prominently displayed in the private office of one of America's top airline executives.

The executive is Eastern Air Line's Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

The newspaper is an issue of The Atlanta Constitution printed the day after the plane carrying the famed World War I ace crashed near Atlanta in 1941.

Ralph McGill, editor of The Constitution, tells the story on "Captain Eddie—the Iron Eagle," to be heard on NBC-Radio Thursday as part of Nightline.

Capt. Rickenbacker

Ralph McGill

The program—heard in Atlanta on WSB-Radio at 9:05 p.m.—is latest in the award-winning series "Biographies in Sound."

Editor McGill was a member of the searching party which found Rickenbacker in the wreckage of his crashed plane. A wire news service reporter, believing that the famed flyer had died, telephoned the erroneous information to The Constitution.

Thousands of issues of an "extra" were printed with the story, but the news that Rickenbacker had in fact survived the crash was received before the newspaper went on sale. The few copies that were not destroyed are now collectors' items.

"Captain Eddie—the Iron Eagle" will be narrated by Walter O'Keefe. The program was produced and written by Don Cameron. Supervisor of the "Biographies in Sound" series is James Holton.

Emmy Show To Feature TV History

Special to The Constitution

NEW YORK — The task of researching 10 years of television history—and then condensing the research into 90 minutes of air time—is currently being undertaken by the production staff for NBC-TV's telecast of the 10th annual EMMY AWARDS ceremonies, live from New York and Los Angeles, Tuesday, April 15 (10-11:30 p.m., EST).

The three TV networks have opened their film libraries to the Emmy group, which is selecting television's top moments of the years 1948-1956 for a special cavalcade format.

Nine 90-second film clips comprising the most important events and most outstanding personalities of each of the years will be narrated by a group of America's outstanding newscasters.

"The more we look through this material," says producer Bill Kayden, "the more we realize what an incredible medium television really is. Just think of the miles and miles of script and thousands and thousands of actors that belong in the log of TV's first 10 years."

"We are seeing now," he says, "and the viewers of the telecast will see April 15 just how much really has happened in the past 10 years through the medium of television."

Georgia Play To Be Shown On CBS-TV

Special to The Constitution

NEW YORK — The long-run prize-winning Broadway play by Georgia author Carson McCullers, "The Member of the Wedding," will be presented on the Columbia Broadcasting Television network Thursday, June 12.

It will be the final program of the season on the Du Pont Show of the Month series.

Miss McCullers, a native of Columbus, will serve as script consultant for "The Member of the Wedding." Locale of the play is her native Georgia. Miss McCullers is also the author of several best-selling novels and short story collections.

SENSITIVE STORY

"The Member of the Wedding" is the sensitive story of Frankie Addams, a ganky adolescent girl who wants to "belong" by becoming not only a member of her brother's wedding party, but also by going away to live with the bride and groom. The play was performed 501 times on Broadway during the 1949-50 season, and was subsequently made into a motion picture with members of the original stage cast, Julie Harris, Ethel Waters and Brandon De Wilde.

The play won both the New York critics circle award as the play of the year, and the Donaldson award as the theatrical season's finest drama.

7 YEARS OLD • 86 PROOF • OLD CHARTER DISTILLERY CO., LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

"I'VE BEEN FEELING BETTER LATELY.. and here's how I've got it figured out"

After making this statement to his studio audience, Arthur Godfrey said: "I've been using Niagara Cyclo-Massage® these past few weeks . . . and I do believe it helps me to relieve tension and nervous fatigue due to overwork and over-exercise. It also helps me sleep better . . . and I think it does these things through increased circulation of blood. Now I don't suffer from arthritis, but they tell me that Niagara Cyclo-Massage® is terrific for chronic arthritis pains, too."

Clinical research in leading institutions has repeatedly proved the accuracy of Mr. Godfrey's statements. And many thousands of individual users have discovered for themselves the exceptional health-promoting benefits made possible through Niagara. An amazing, drugless "miracle of science," it provides soothing, gently penetrating massage action that fills one with a wonderful feeling of well being.

4 clubs	Pass	5 diams.	Pass

The bidding:

Opening lead: Three of spades.

An unusual safety play involving a conservation of resources is shown in today's hand. In order to protect himself from a possible adverse ruff at a time when trumps could not be drawn, declarer had to defer cashing one of his high cards until it was safe to do so.

When East opened the bidding with one spade South flashed the immediate game-going signal by a cue bid of two spades.

This would normally be dangerous practice with a void suit which partner might be expected to bid perhaps again and again. But South was well prepared for a retreat to diamonds.

North dutifully responded with three clubs, East passed, and South referred to his eminently sound diamond suit. North properly rebid his seven-card suit and South, concluding that there was no need for further dalliance, contracted for game in diamonds.

West opened the three of spades which declarer felt was very apt to be a singleton. Dummy put up the jack, East the queen and South won with the ace.

Since declarer must lose a heart trick he must arrange to ruff one spade in the dummy. However, the ruff is not yet available since dummy has another spade. If declarer attempts to cash the king of spades to create a ruffing situation in dummy, West may be able to ruff and return a trump leaving only one trump in dummy to take care of South's two bad spades.

Inasmuch as one spade must be lost at all events, declarer decided to give up the spade loser at once. He therefore led the four of spades from his hand at trick two, conceding the trick. Now when he regained the lead he ruffed the remaining low spade with dummy's ten of diamonds and was in position to claim 11 tricks.

NOT SO DEEP

His Mother Wasn't Right About This April Rain

The little boy looked out the picture window at the April shower dampening his playground.

"Gee, I wish it'd quit raining!" he pouted. "I want to go out to play!"

"Now, don't fret, honey," his mother said. "The farmers need the rain to make things grow."

Chances are she was dead wrong—at least right now. The Georgia Crop Reporting Service says farmers are about two weeks behind with their planting all over the state—a delay that may mean crop failure for some.

R. L. Cornelius at the U.S. Weather Bureau here said that our rainfall so far this year has been just about normal as far as the number of inches measured, but the rain has come lightly and often, with many cloudy days in between, giving the soil little chance to dry out.

Rain the Farmer Would Order

Actually, mother, if the farmer could order his rain, he might ask for it to come like this: Fairly heavy winter rains, good for small grains and to keep the ground water level up so his well won't go dry. A relatively dry early spring, with just enough light rain to give the soil good tilth.

After planting time, he wants a lot of moisture—but in nice, sizzle-sozzle kinds of rains, if you please. No terrace busters or gully washers wanted. Then he would like a good period of warm sunshine.

Even after his plants are growing, he needs some rain, but he also needs dry periods so he can get in the fields to cultivate his crops, if he is a row crop farmer. And at harvest time, hold back the rain.

Each Crop Is Different

Of course every crop is a little different in its moisture requirements. Corn takes more moisture than cotton. A cotton planter had just as soon see it very dry after the bolls start opening and he has pickers in the field.

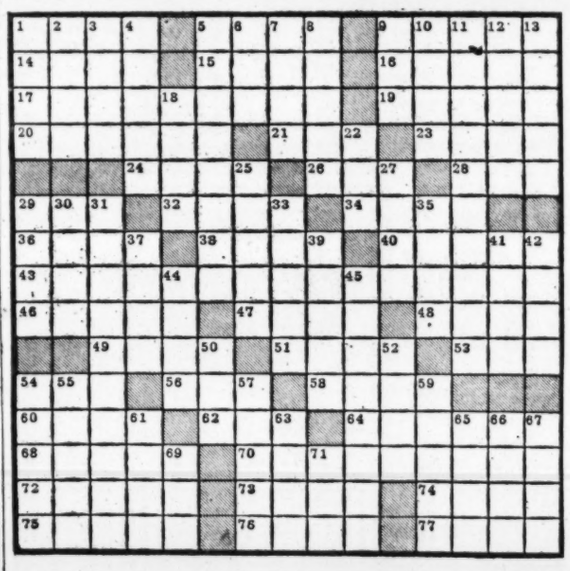

Pasture farmers just smile and say, "Let it rain!"

Georgia farmers are just now getting over the effects of the two driest years on record—1954 and 1955. Normal rainfall for the Atlanta area is a little more than 49 inches. In 1954, only 31.80 inches fell. Then the weather repeated in 1955 with only 36.43 inches. The ground water table dropped so much that it was 1957 before it got back to normal again.

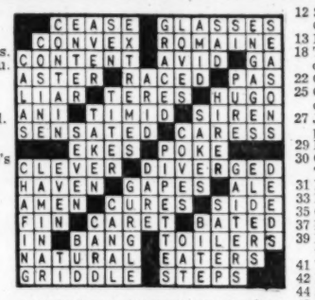

"Really, 1955 was just about as bad as 1954 because we had such hot, dry weather in between the rains that it just dried the soil right out," Mr. Cornelius said. "Soil moisture is normal now, or even some above normal. Wells that went dry in the two bad years are producing again."

But Georgia is generally blessed. We normally get enough rain, but not too much, and we have an abundance of water for industry and the ever-increasing population.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Spring comes, as it always has come, bringing new life, greater sensitivity to the world's wonders; the birds and the poets sing and love is in the air.

—Article quote.

Be thankful you have lived to see . . . the coming of another spring . . . the red buds bursting on some tree . . . the swift flick of a swallow's wing . . . the green veil that the willows wear . . . the freshness of the spreading dawn . . . and now I fear you must prepare . . . for things that will come later on.

With too much rhyme, and little reason . . . the poet will pick up his pen . . . and write about the vernal season . . . when women are pursued by men . . . of orange blooms and other flowers . . . so dear to every woman's heart . . . the weddings and the bridal showers . . . and that is where most troubles start.

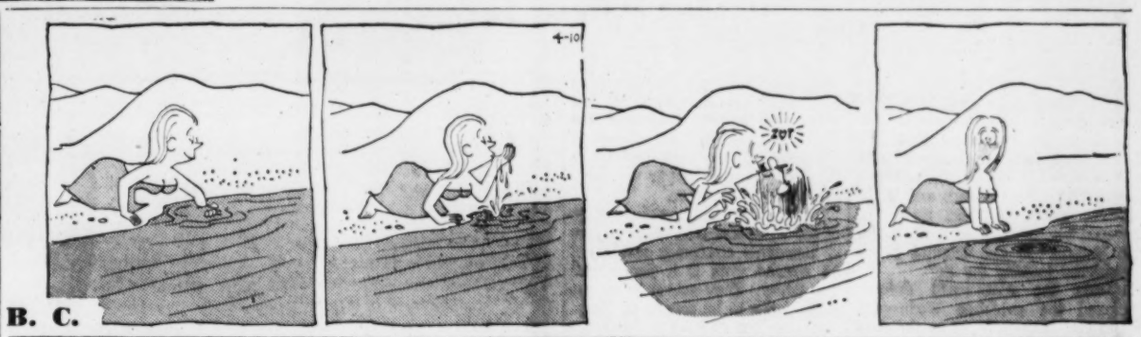

I think, when spring was first invented . . . which happened in ye olden times . . . most everyone became demented . . . and filled the papyrus with rhymes . . . but summer seems to cool their ardor . . . and they forsake it in the fall . . . and in the winter it grows harder . . . and sometimes we can't write at all.

Which, in itself, may be a blessing . . . it brings a season of relief . . . and though much of it is depressing . . . it has one virtue; it is brief.

Committed No Crime, Ex-Marshal Testifies

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

A former Fulton Civil Court deputy marshal charged with altering court records emphatically denied Wednesday that he had committed any crime.

Raymond C. Bowden made the denial to a Fulton Superior Court jury a short while after another deputy marshal, D. R. Flynt Jr., testified he made a copy of sales of repossessed property at the courthouse Feb 4, 1957, and three deys after found the records had been altered.

Bowden, in a lengthy unsworn statement to the jury, charged that Flynt and another marshal, Pat Burke, had "tried to frame me." He told the jury that in conducting the sales before the courthouse door, "every dime of that money . . . was turned in to the marshal's office . . ."

As to contentions that the court records contained fictitious names and addresses of purchasers, Bowden said he only "put down the addresses and names given to me." "I had no alternative," he said.

Earlier in the day, Robert Carpenter, a former Civil Court judge who appeared as a character witness for Bowden, said he frequently had seen purchasers give false names and added, "I've done it myself."

Carpenter explained that this was done because property sold in the sales often was under a retention title contract and if the buyer gave his right name, he would be "setting himself up for a lawsuit" if the original owner "started looking for it."

Both the state and defense closed the evidence Wednesday and the case may go to the jury Thursday after arguments from the state and defense and the jury gets its instructions from Judge Virlyn B. Moore.

The case will go to the jury on nine counts of altering and falsifying public records. A tenth count was ruled out by Judge Moore because a sales record in connection with the allegation was in a name different from that contained in the indictment.

Bowden and former chief deputy marshal T. A. Poole are charged in the indictments with erasing the correct bid prices they received on property sold at court sales and substituting lesser amounts.

Bowden, in outlining his defense to the jury, said he had been a court employe more than 15 years and had given "as faithful and honest service as I've known how to give anyone."

"I'm not guilty of any of the indictments. I simply put down the figures given to me at the sale," Bowden declared.

Besides Carpenter, the defense used approximately 35 character witnesses for Bowden. At one point, Judge Moore allowed the state and defense to swear 14 witnesses at one time and stipulate they would swear to Bowden's good character.

Under cross-examination some of the witnesses said their opinion of Bowden's character would not be altered even if a jury found him guilty. They said the charges would have to be proven to them.

Among the character witnesses was former Atlanta Alderman J. Allen Couch, County Purchasing Agent Roy Baker, Chief Probation Officer S. N. Manning, A. C. Latimer of the Atlanta Board of Education, Superior Court Judge Jesse M. Wood, Civil Court Judge A. L. Henson and Fulton Jailer Cal Smithwick.

Hapeville City Taxes Due in by May 1

Hapeville citizens have until May 1 to pay their 1958 city taxes, Mayor Eugene Dixon announced Wednesday.

Dixon said that persons paying their taxes before May 1 will be given a five per cent discount as in years past.

The 1958 tax rate for Hapeville is 12 mills, the same as last year. The city sanitation tax will be $18 per kitchen unit.

Ousted State Board Member Blames Savannah Dispute

Atlanta attorney H. A. Alexander suggested Wednesday that he was replaced on the Georgia Historical Commission because of his efforts to get the state to recover control of state property in downtown Savannah.

Alexander said his commission expired Jan. 1 of this year but that he had not received notice that he was not being reappointed until "a couple of weeks ago."

The attorney has contended for several years that a local act giving Savannah authority to lease the old City Market property on Ellis Square is unconstitutional.

A 1952 local act authorized Savannah officials to "raze, repair or alter" the old market to make way for a public parking garage. The right was sublet to Park and Shop Inc. on a 50-year lease.

At the time the old market was being torn down, Savannah citizens collected some 17,000 names on a petition of protest.

In 1954 Alexander sued as a taxpayer on behalf of the state for $200,000 in damages. The Georgia Supreme Court held the following year that only the governor or the attorney general may file actions on behalf of the state.

Alexander said Wednesday that he has tried without success to interest Gov. Griffin and Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook in the matter. He said the statute of limitations will run out on the matter late in June.

4,000 Negro Educators Gathering for State Meeting

COLUMBUS (AP)—More than 500 Negro educators registered at Spencer High School here Wednesday afternoon before the opening session of the 40th annual convention of the Georgia Teachers and Education Assn.

The number of delegates, representing Negro schools from throughout the state, is expected to swell to more than 4,000 before the three-day convention closes Friday.

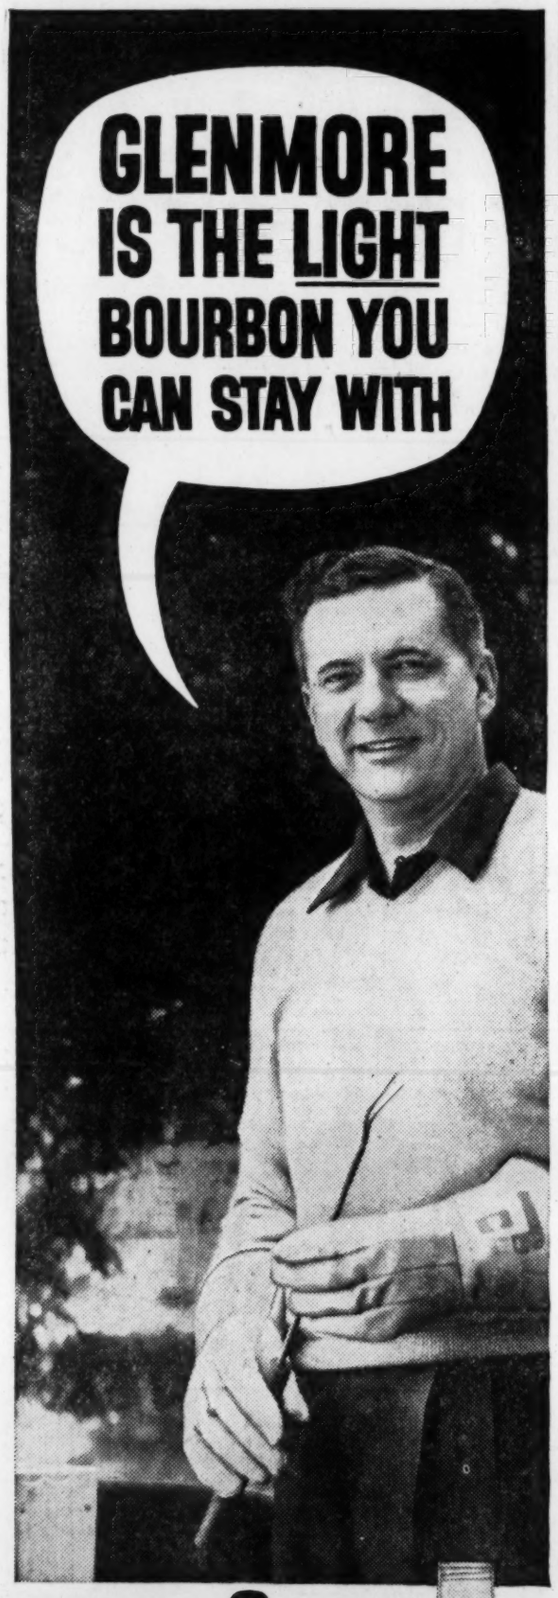

Wednesday night's meeting, held at Spencer High auditorium, was highlighted by acceptance speeches of four educators nominated for the office of vice president of the association.

Nominated for the post are Robert Threatt, Columbus teacher; Robert A. Bryant, principal of Carver Hill High School, Cedartown; Daniel T. Grant, principal of Washington Consolidated School, Cairo, and John W. Lawton, principal of Willow Hill Elementary School, Statesboro.

Election of the vice president, who will automatically move into the presidency two years from now, will take place Thursday.

H. E. Tate, Griffin, outgoing president of the association, gave the president's annual report Wednesday night, outlining the expansion of the organization in membership, program and service during the last year.

Awaiting the Deal

Southern Association managers, who have been frantically shuffling player decks like losing poker players, will start dividing championship chips Friday night.

It is quite obvious that Mr Buddy Bates, who won the pot last year, does not hold a winning hand. During the Crackers' 6-16 spring exhibition recession, very few aces were uncovered.

Outlar

Mr. Bates is eager to draw from Wichita's rich player pool. However, Mr. Ben Geraghty is the dealer, and he is not a man noted for quick decisions. So Mr. Bates must play what he has until the Wichita pilot completes his cast.

"There is no use kidding ourselves," Earl Mann said Wednesday afternoon. "We do not have a championship contender at present. Fortunately, I think that we will have a representative club within a few days."

Due to one thing and another, the Crackers are likely to be a Silky Sullivan in this year's Southern Derby. There is no reason to expect them to break from the gate with Chattanooga, Nashville, Birmingham and perhaps some others.

However, Atlanta figures to become a first-division club. With the exception of catchers, Milwaukee has the talent, and the Crackers will eventually get their share.

Only three members of last year's championship crew will perform against the Birmingham Barons in the curtain-raiser. Old pro Samuel Meeks will be stationed at third, Buck Riddle will play first, and right-hander Paul Cave will chunk.

Actually the Crackers will be dropping down in class when they encounter Southern opposition. Most of their lickings were administered by Wichita, and losing to Ft. Mac is no humiliation. In fact, Mr. Charlie Hurth should consider the Colonels as a replacement for New Orleans.

Perhaps the current Crackers will surprise. Meanwhile, Mr. Mann and Mr. Bates are hoping and waiting.

—Tipoff Club Had No Tipoff on Rupp

Though this is the baseball season, basketball is in season any time Adolph Rupp is in town. And Mr. Rupp was in our midst Wednesday night. You might say that the Tipoff Club, local basketball's answer to TD and QB clubs, received a bonus throw.

When president Frank Johnson and his group signed Mr. Rupp as a Jamboree speaker, they had no inkling they were engaging the coach of the NCAA champions. Not even Mr. Rupp had any idea that his Wildcats were the best team in the country.

Mr. Rupp adequately stated his case when he said that he had some Saturday night fiddlers, but he did not expect to see them playing in Carnegie Hall. As it turned out, the Baron tightened his bow and presented a symphony orchestra in the Lexington concert.

It was a pleasure to visit with the Baron again Wednesday night, but he was circling around the Atlanta airport as this was typed.

His triumphant return to Atlanta reminded me of his previous visit. His fiddlers were off key that January evening, and Whack Hyder's Techsters romped to a lop-sided 19-point victory.

The Baron left the court in a huff and remarked that this team had showed him things he hadn't seen in years. There was considerable doubt whether the Wildcats would bag their 18½th SEC crown. Certainly Mr. Rupp never dreamed that the Wildcats would present him a national championship.

—It's Dogwood Time: Dahlbender vs. Barnes

Mr. Hyder, the only SEC coach to decision Mr. Rupp three times in four years, introduced the Baron at the Tipoff Club. There is never a dull moment when Mr. Rupp is around, so the Tipoffers assured themselves of an entertaining evening when they signed the Baron. However, it should be noted that he is more entertaining when he is sporting an NCAA crown.

They are staging the 14th annual Dogwood tournament on the Druid Hills course, which is another way of saying that Gene Dahlbender and Tommy Barnes are renewing their feud. Both own four Dogwood trophies, and they are again co-favorites.

Juvenile delegates such as Lester Kelly and Jerry Greenbaum will undoubtedly break the skein in a year or so. But such experts as Mr. Bert Prather and Mr. Ed Miles, who seldom agree on anything, agree that the Dogwood is once again a two-man toss-up.

Sandwiched between the championship and the cocktail flight are more than 200 golfers, so the tournament is certainly one of the biggest in the South.

Mr. Barnes, one of the famous brothers, is the Horton Smith of the Dogwood. He has never missed a meet. Mr. Dahlbender will be making his 11th appearance.

One of the most interesting meets was unreeled in 1954, when Frank Stevenson Jr. took the prize. Frank shot a 64, eight under par, in the second round, but lost a stroke to Dahlbender. However, he didn't lose the tournament.

Officials broke precedent this year by seeding a dozen players, but no one is apt to interrupt the Dahlbender-Barnes monopoly.

Rupp Is Still Not Sure When His 'Cats Jelled

Blue Grass Baron Wows Packed House At Tipoff Club's First Jamboree

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Basketball's most renowned music teacher waved an oratorical magic wand Wednesday night.

And Adolph Rupp, who converted a bunch of basketballing fiddlers into champion violinists, was a smash hit to an overflow crowd of 300 at the Atlanta Tipoff Club's first annual Jamboree.

King Basketball, who took Kentucky to an unprecedented fourth national championship last month, is still marveling at the miracle that recently took place.

"I was under no delusions about my team at the season's start," Rupp said. "I knew I had a bunch of kids who didn't have outstanding ability and that it would take a miracle to even win the Southeastern Conference."

This was the same man who later called Ed Beck of Ft. Valley, Ga., "the best-without doubt-defensive center in the country."

"Nobody thought we'd get past Miami (Ohio) in the NCAA playoffs. I told the team to take the week off before the game. I didn't figure we were going anywhere anyway.

"Before the game, I called in the mayor, governor, a lawyer, a doctor and a minister to speak to them. Each said a speech.

"The doctor told them to 'go out there and give 'em hell.' Then the minister told them, 'follow the doctor's orders.'"

For almost 90 minutes, the Baron wowed 'em with some serious stuff and much philosophical wit.

He recalled that Kentucky opened up the 1957-58 season in the stiffest style imaginable. Consecutive foes were Duke, Ohio State, Temple, Maryland, St. Louis, Southern Methodist and West Virginia.

And he recalled that his "fiddlers" lost three of the seven games—to the Terrapins, Mustangs and Mountaineers.

This was when he remembered one magazine hadn't included the Wildcats among the nation's top 50 teams in a preseason poll.

"If I had known we were that bad, I'd have taken an ad in the magazine."

Rupp doesn't know when his team jelled. But he said they really weren't so terrible as the abominable two losses in the SEC indicated.

"The SEC out on its long pants this year," Rupp commented. "We had four teams (Kentucky, Auburn, Mississippi State and Tennessee) among the nation's top 18. And the Big 10 only had one."

"My boys couldn't afford to let up all season long, and they were pooped before the tournament started. Why, every player had lost from 4-6 pounds during the grind."

And he said the boys who surpassed all his other great squads in team effort just kept on driv-

Brooker Captures Dogwood Medal

One-Under-Par 71 Tops; 37-Man Field Tees Off

By BERT PRATHER

Bill Brooker, playing his third round since last fall, shot a one-under-par 33-38—71 Wednesday to capture medalist honors in the 14th annual Druid Hills Dogwood Invitational.

Defending champion Gene Dahlbender Jr., Tommy Barnes, who like Dahlbender has won the event four times; ex-Southern champions Charlie Harrison and George Hamer, little Bob White of Savannah and former state champion Charlie Black Jr., were exempt and did not elect to go for the medal.

The low 36 and ties, including exemptees, make up the championship division which will be decided at 72 holes of stroke play, winding up Sunday. Actually 37 players will go for the title.

All others in the 231 player field were placed in match play flights of 16 each.

East Lake's L. B. Roane was second low qualifier with a 72, while former Southern Intercollegiate champ, Lester Kelly, another Druid Hiller, was third with a 73.

Mickelsen Captures Spot as Hill Starter

Robertson and Riddle Blast Feds in 18-0 Cracker Win

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Noel Mickelsen nailed down a starting job, and Sonny Robertson nailed the Feds to a figurative cross as the Crackers won their final exhibition game Wednesday, 18-0, at Federal Penitentiary.

The Crackers ended their victory drought with a rain of home runs before a captive audience of 2,700 as they tuned up for their Friday Southern Association opener in Birmingham.

Warden Fred Wilkinson had declared a half-holiday for inmates of the Penitentiary and affiliate Honor Farm at Panthersville. And the Crackers, needing a victory to finish spring play with a 6-16 won-lost chart, declared war on the prison nine.

Buck Riddle, Sammy Meeks, Carl Powis and Robertson smashed home runs during a 13-hit assault on Carlos Bright, Jim Yarborough and Ray Branham. But Robertson and Mickelsen made the most important contributions of the day in the eyes of Buddy Bates.

Both rookies used the game as a springboard to security in the regular-season Cracker lineup, at least until they dive into possible slumps later on.

Starting pitcher Mickelsen fired four perfect innings and allowed only one ball to be hit to the outfield before retiring in favor of Lefty Dale Hendrickson. The sparkling stint by the 6-6 ex-San Diego State basketball star convinced manager Bates that the gangling right-hander should be his Saturday pitcher in Birmingham.

Shortstop Robertson, whose top batting mark in four years of professional play was .266, continued his sensational hitting spree by cowtailing a home run, two doubles and a single. He batted home five runs and scored three.

Riddle, back on the hitting

Crackers Will Face Black or Harrington

Ermer's Experienced Barons Win 11, Lose 5 Exhibitions

Birmingham manager Cal Ermer will bank on a lineup heavy with experience to make a fast getaway in the Southern Assn. race when Atlanta's Crackers invade Rickwood Park Friday night.

Ermer, whose Barons compiled a solid 11-5-1 won-lost-tied record in exhibition season, will send either Bud Black or Bill Harrington to the mound for the regular-season opener.

Both are right-handers who have had considerable experience. Thirty-year-old Harrington, who spent part of last season with Charleston, W.Va., of the American Assn., had a 6-6 record at Birmingham.

The 25-year-old Black, only mediocre during 1957 tours with Birmingham and Augusta of the Sally League, has pitched fine ball in spring games.

The Barons also will be long on experience in the batting order, five of the eight starters—excluding hurlers—being veterans of seasons in leagues of AA or higher caliber.

Second baseman Howie Phillips, who has spent keystone time at Birmingham, Charleston and Houston, is expected to lead off, although Ermer reserved the right to switch to Steve Boros, bonus boy signed by the parent Detroit club.

Ermer announced the rest of his batting order as Frank Kostro, ss; Steve Demeter, 3b; Lou Limmer, 1b; George Thomas, rf; Mel Clark, cf; George Alusik, lf, and Don Griffin, c.

Kostro is a sensational rookie up from Durham, N.C. Thomas is a bonus player from University of Minnesota. Alusik hit .308 at Augusta last year. The others are all seasoned veterans.

The Barons beat Memphis in six of six exhibition games but lost three of four to Nashville. Limmer is the No. 1 power hitter. Only Limmer and Phillips, of the starters, hit left-handed.—ROBERTS.

ing.

"They finally learned that important lesson in sports that you have to give a little something extra."

Then Rupp recited one of his favorite sayings:

"Stick to the task until it sticks to you. The beginners are many, the finishers few."

Next the Baron stuck one of his famous needles into the various SEC all-star selections.

"I can't take any credit for the team's success. It definitely wasn't over-coached. Why I didn't get a single vote for SEC Coach-of-the-Year."

Rupp concluded his speech on a humble note.

"The distance from roses to raspberries ain't very far," Rupp said. Four Wildcat starters were seniors this year.

Receiving Player-of-the-Year awards were Georgia's Henry Cabaniss, Southern Tech's Don Wedd, Brown's Allan Johnson, Murphy's Carol Watrous and Northside's Caryl Lenahan.

Tech's Whack Hyder introducted Rupp. Other coaches attending were Auburn's Joel Eaves, Georgia's Red Lawson, Clemson's Press Maravich, Wofford's Gene Alexander and Harry Stille, Tech assistants Byran Gilbreath and Sonny Stevens, Southern Tech's Harry Lockhart, Oglethorpe's Garland Pinholster.

Lifetime honorary memberships were given to Rupp and Joe Bean a basketball pioneer in the state.

Rains Catch 3-AAA Baseball; Try Thursday

Rain washed in and postponed all 3-AAA baseball Wednesday. Caught by the precipitation were Roosevelt at Fulton, Murphy at North Fulton and Bass at Grady.

A six-game card is down for Thursday, unless this also falls victim to the rains. The schedule has West Fulton at O'Keefe, Northside at Brown, Sylvan at Southwest, North Fulton at Bass, Fulton at Smith and Murphy at Roosevelt, the latter a key game in the eastern division.

Elsewhere in games involving Greater Atlanta teams, Avondale is at Tucker; Chamblee at Gainesville and Osborne at Marietta.—ATKINSON

CRACKER DIARY

Streeter Arrives, To Start at 2b; Bob Uecker Will Catch Opener

Gerald Streeter, purchased from Louisville Monday, will open the Southern Assn. season at second base for the Crackers even though he hasn't played a spring inning for Atlanta.

Streeter arrived from Louisville's Plant City, Fla., training base Wednesday after the Crackers had played their final exhibition game and said he was ready to go.

That suited manager Buddy Bates, who was first impressed by Streeter's class when the infielder lashed at a .360 clip during a brief tour at Albuquerque in the Class A Western League in 1956.

"We'll start him at second base in our opener in Birmingham Friday night and see how he looks," said Bates Wednesday, as he decided upon his starters at other positions, too.

"I want to mull over my batting order awhile longer before deciding upon it, but I'll start Buck Riddle at first base, Streeter at second, Daryl Robertson at shortstop and Sammy Meeks at third base."

Right-hander Noel Mickelsen is his choice for the Saturday night pitching assignment. He had planned to go with Jim Umbricht Sunday, but the 6-4, 210-pounder may wind up on the injured list instead of on the mound. A back ailment hasn't responded to treatment.

CRACKER CRUMBS—Shortstop Robertson has been the sensation of the last week of spring drills. The 22-year-old from Cripple Creek, Colo., has crippled pitching foes for the last six games. Over that span he has lashed 16 hits in 25 trips. The socks included seven doubles, two homers and a triple. He batted in 16 runs while hitting .640 for the final week. . . . Mickelsen allowed Columbus, Ohio, of the AAA International League only two runs and five hits in four innings in his last stint before his perfect four frames against Federal Pen Wednesday.

The Crackers led the Feds by 18-0 when pitcher Ray Branham came to bat with two Feds mates on base in the last inning. "With your own game," urged a teammate. . . . Warden Fred Wilkinson, gazing painfully at the scoreboard, quipped, "I've got to send to Alcatraz or somewhere and recruit some pitchers." . . . Charlie Miller, sports editor of the fine "Atlantian" magazine put out by the prisoners, started at shortstop for the Feds. . . . Wilkinson presented Cracker Pres. Earl Mann with a beautiful painting, the work of an inmate. . . . Hank Morgan, long-time radio voice of the Crackers on WQXI, handled the PA system and spouted jokes between innings. Catcher Hurdle Linestor has played for the Feds for at least a decade. He and Chet Taylor got the two Fed hits. . . . Wilkinson and recreation director Ralph Masters proudly showed newsmen and Cracker officials their sparkling new basketball gym and the electric scoreboard donated by Cecil Jones of Coca-Cola Bottling. Few schools have so fine a plant. —ROBERTS.

Pettit, Hagan, Martin Lead Hawks' Win

BOSTON (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks wrecked crippled Boston's slowdown strategy in the first half and held on for a 102-100 victory Wednesday, moving within one victory of the National Basketball Assn. championship.

Big Bob Pettit, speedy Slater Martin and rugged Cliff Hagan were the big difference as the Hawks took a 3-2 advantage in their best-of-seven series against the defending champion Celtics.

Pettit connected for 33 points and was a demon under the boards. Martin clicked for 25 points and Hagan for 21 in the loosely played clash before a packed 13,909 at Boston Garden.

Boston crept to within three points and had the ball out of bounds with 16 seconds remaining. Frank Ramsey tossed in a long set to make it 101-100 with 12 seconds left.

The Celtics went into a full court press and Martin was fouled with one second to go. After Boston argued vainly that St. Louis had not brought the ball across midcourt in the required 10 seconds, Martin converted his free throw.

With towering Bill Russell, the NBA rebound king, watching from the bench because of a severe ankle injury, the Celtics slowed their offense and often sent backcourt star Bob Cousy into the pivot.

Hurts Hit Again --- Tech Loses Stone

Whites Rap Greens, 27-0

BOB STONE
Will Undergo Surgery Today

Georgia Tech guard Bob Stone of Chattanooga will undergo surgery Thursday to repair a right knee injured Wednesday in a muddy scrimmage at the Flats.

The 6-1, 202-pound junior was enjoying one of his best defensive days when he injured the knee while covering a punt play. And only one play before Stone had bruised his left knee.

Thus a scrimmage session, that otherwise pleased Coach Bobby Dodd, took another bite into ranks that have been thinned alarmingly this spring by injury.

Stone was considered the No. 1 left guard in the absence of captain Foster Watkins, who also injured a knee and was excused for the remaining spring drills.

A 27-0 White romp over the Greens would indicate a mismatch, but Dodd attributed some early breaks by the Whites to the score.

"We thought the teams were even," the Tech master said, "but early breaks helped the Whites and the Greens spent the rest of the afternoon trying to catch up.

"It was another good scrimmage, however. Even though everybody was sliding around in the mud, they hit hard. They're coming along well."

Defensive boss Ray Graves passed out laurels to guard John Neal Reed, Stone, end M. A. Davis and tackle Billy Shaw.

Sophomore quarterback Walter Howard of Roanoke, Va., continued to please the brass. He piloted the White backfield of Floyd Faucette, Frank Nix and Cal James.

The Green backfield, behind Fred Braselton, was Ronnie Lewis, Taz Anderson and Ben Smith.

Here's the way the scoring went:

68-Yard Drive—Big play was 47-yard pass from Howard to end Gerald Burch. Nix and Faucette carried to the 5 where Faucette went outside for TD. James booted the points.

Sophomore guard Mike Biddle blocked Ben Smith's attempted quick kick, giving Whites ball on the Green 21. Faucette and Nix carried to 1, where James bucked over. Pass for point was no good.

Faucette returned a punt 41 yards to set up No. 3. Faucette did big ground gaining to 2, where Nix scored. Pass for point was incomplete.

Second unit Whites under quarterback Jack Baker marched 67 yards, key play being 21-yard pass from Baker to end Vance Rankin. Larry Fonts scored from one, and Baker hit Rankin again for the two points.

Pastor Calms Berserk Kansas State Cage Star Parr

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Jack Parr, Kansas State's all-Big Eight Conference basketball player, went berserk in a hospital room Wednesday, wrecked the furniture and cut his wrists with broken glass.

The 6-foot, 10-inch center drove physicians and nurses away, brandishing a chair leg, and was locked in the room more than an hour before he was induced to come out peacefully, his attending physician reported.

Finally Parr talked with County Attorney Richard D. Rogers and the Rev. Samuel S. George, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, through an open window and agreed to allow them to enter the room.

REDLEG STAR FELLED BY PITCHED BALL

Trainer Wayne Anderson Examines Frank Robinson

against the Memphis Chicks. He walked, twice.

The Red Sox beat the Chicks, 10-1.

Cincinnati left-fielder Frank Robinson suffered a cerebral concussion when hit on the side of the head by a pitched ball in a game with Washington at Portsmouth, Ohio.

Robinson was struck by a Camilio Pascual pitch and fell unconscious, but X-ray examination revealed the Redleg star probably will be ready for next Tuesday's opener. The Redlegs beat Washington, 2-0.

Elsewhere in major league action: Philadelphia shelled Sal Maglie and the New York Yankees, 12-8; the White Sox beat St. Louis, 10-6; Kansas City spanked its Little Rock farm, 8-3; San Francisco spoiled a Herb Score pitching gem and beat Cleveland, 6-3, and Milwaukee beat the Los Angeles Dodgers, 5-4.

The largest baseball crowd in North Carolina history, 10,059 at Winston-Salem, saw the Phils chase Maglie with 11 hits in six innings.

Tito Francona's home run and double highlighted Chicago's slugfest with the Cardinals. Wally Moon had a grand-slam homer for St. Louis.

The Giants scored four times in the third to spoil Score's performance. Score was the loser, but allowed only two hits in the six innings he worked. He walked three.

Detroit's game with its Birmingham farm club was rained out.

beam after a short slump, batted across five runs also, lashing a two-run double and one-run single in addition to his round-tripper. Riddle's blow also gave him the Crackers' spring "homer championship" over Meeks by a 5-4 margin.

The 33-year-old Meeks emphasized that he is ready for the season to start by belting his fourth round-tripper in the last four games, a three-run smash in the fourth. Powis' homer in the eighth was his second such contribution to the Crackers' total of 21 all-the-way blasts this spring.

Hendrickson, who allowed only two scratch infield singles in his four rounds on the firing line, also furthered his cause for a spot on the hurling staff. He fanned six, walked only two. And the two Atlanta hurlers faced only 27 batters before play was called after eight innings.

Right fielder Roy Hawes, who had a double, and Powis made fine catches of the only two balls the Feds hit to the outfield.

Bates indicated the Crackers would work out only lightly Thursday. If the weather is bad they won't drill at all, he said. They will depart for Birmingham by bus at 10 a.m. Friday.

Anderson, Rhino Prove That Sports Don't Take Up All of Students' Extra Time

By PAUL ATKINSON

At times, sports constitute the only extracurricular activities for some. Then there are others, such as Marist's Charlie Rhino and Midville's Benjie Anderson.

Rhino, a football halfback, a baseball pitcher and a sprint man on Boots Payne's track team, also is a baritone. As such, he has the lead role in Marist's production of "Wonderful Town" Thursday and Friday.

Paul Atkinson

"We had to move up our baseball game with Athens," coach George Maloof said. "They had a special showing of 'Wonderful Town' Wednesday, and Rhino had to be in it."

Payne went into his track meet with Westminster's below strength. Track members John Carroll, Kenny Crowder, Jim Bouleware, David Hynes and Lou Truemper also had parts in the operetta.

Anderson, signed this week by Georgia Teachers College to a basketball scholarship, is perhaps south Georgia's most versatile athlete-scholar-farmer. Here are some of his achievements, besides a four-year career basketball record of 2,279 points for Buck Brannen's Bulldogs:

He captured first place in the Georgia FFA tractor-driving contest in 1955 and represented the state in the national finals at Tulsa, Okla., and placed second; took third place in the district FFA corn-growing contest this year, with 133 bushels per acre and won the 4-H corn contest in 1955 with 143 bushels.

Anderson is also winner of numerous blue ribbons for outstanding entries in the annual Burke County Fair, his gilt and sow entries in 1955 event won both Grand Championships and his 1956 sow took the Grand Championship. In recognition of his agricultural activities, he received the Georgia Planters Degree last year, and was voted the "most agricultural" at Midville.

He also took superior ratings in the state as part of a clarinet trio in 1954, and received an excellent rating for his baritone saxophone solo in 1955. Anderson is also a member of the church choir at Midville Baptist Church.

Whew. Where do they find time for sports?

THE FUNNYBONE: This one was stranger than funny. A McEachern base runner, heading for third base, piled into the base umpire, and the tag was put on the runner. Would you call the ump out for interference? It's a ticklish ruling, and one that's not covered by the rule book. Of course, the ump had the last word and the runner was out . . . instead of the umpire.

PREP PRATTLE: Names to jot down for future baseball reference: Winder-Barrow's Kenny Page, who set down 17 Monroe batters Tuesday in a one-hitter; North Clayton's Sonny Hilton, who followed a no-hitter with a one-hit, 12-strikeout gem against West Coweta; Osborne's Larry Dabbs, who set Villa Rica on its ears, 8-0, with a one-hit, 12-strikeouter. . . . Frank Merriwell Dept.: Until a better comes along, Pete Dickens' three-run, two-out, two-strike homer that got Athens a 5-5 tie with Marist will do. . . . And McEachern's Zeke Swanson is belting that baseball, with 7-for-13 and a hit in all of the team's games. . . . And for those interested, a workshop in the areas of health, physical education, recreation and athletics will be held May 16-18 at Rock Eagle 4-H Camp in Eatonton, writes Gene DeTullio of Spalding County Junior High at Griffin. . . . Paul Kennedy has Rome's track squad in high gear. The team took a triangular meet from Cedartown and Dalton Tuesday because of stout shows from Bobby Mashburn and Hunter Bradley. . . . Nomination for most destructive two-man hitting show of season: The seven-RBI (grand-slam and three-run homers) by Roosevelt second baseman Dickie Howington and four-for-five (three doubles, a triple and three RBI) for catcher Jerry Manders in 25-3 lacing of Grady last week. . . . Murphy gave a fond farewell salute the other day to four key seniors off its AAA girls' championship basketball team and three off the boys' AAA winners. Gone on the distaff side are Carol Watrous, Marilea Lattimer, Fran Karr and Mimi Culpepper. Leaving for the Eagles are Bob Betsill, Johnny Guthrie and George McCord. . . . Butler's Mac Marchman, in Atlanta for the Washington-Cincinnati exhibition Saturday, reports he's losing ace basketballer Lamar Duncan for a good reason. Father A. B. Duncan, principal of Butler schools, is going to Carrollton.

WONDER WHERE HITS WENT

Stingy Dabbs, Walters Hold Tight Reins on Opponents

By PAUL ATKINSON

It's getting so opponents of Osborne's right-handed "big two" of Larry Dabbs and Hugh Walters wonder where the hits went, instead of the runs.

In three games, the velvet-smooth duo has permitted only four hits, three runs. Over 21 innings, that's allowing base raps at only once every 5.25 frames.

Walters has been "blasted" for three of the hits; Dabbs allowed the other Tuesday in a 12-strikeout, one-hit 8-0 whitewashing of Villa Rica. Dabbs' whiffs read 15; Walters' 13.

Charles Kennedy Larry Dobbs

For the most part, according to coach Charles Kennedy, this Osborne team is a junior one. Only outfielder John Burgess, a swift 5-11, 175-pounder, is a senior.

Burgess, one of four .300-plus swingers, is possessed of an accurate arm, and much quickness. He clips off a good 10.6 in the 100-yard dash. "Burgess has pro possibilities," Kennedy appraised.

For the 3-B team that meets Marietta Thursday in a non-region neighborhood duel, outfielder James Poole, third baseman James Waddell and pitcher-outfielder Walters are other .300-batsmen. Poole hits at .625 and has seven stolen bases; Waddell is .571 and includes a three-run homer; Walters is .333.

Elsewhere, Kennedy opens with this lineup: catcher Billy Grant, first baseman Richard Partain, second baseman Dean Anderson and shortstop Darwin Foxx. This quartet has helped contribute to a solid fielding mark of only two errors in three games.

Kennedy is definitely optimistic about this team. "We lost the third game in a best two-of-three set with Model, eventual state Class B champion in 1957," he explains. "But this team we have is improved over last season. It has that added year of experience."

Next 3-B test comes Saturday night at the West Cobb Park, with McEachern the foe.

the team championship when its four-man combine of Brooker (71), Barnes (72), Gene Gaillard (77) and Kelly (73) totaled 293 to win by a 15-stroke margin. East Lake was second with 308. Its members were Roane (72), Harrison (75), Pierce Miller (78) and Bobby Pierce (83).

Brooker's round was all the more surprising since he hit the creek on No. 9 and ditch on 16 to incur two penalty strokes.

His front nine could have been a real sizzler except for the penalty stroke at 8 and a three-putt on the short No. 6 for a bogey four.

Bill had five birdies on this nine, three of them in succession. After a par start, Brooker had birdie-threes on 2, 3 and 4, sinking putts of 6, 5 and 10-feet. He was on the long 7th in two and down in two for his birdie 4. His approach shot on No. 9 left him a six-foot birdie shot which he sank for his 4.

The host club star birdies only one hole on the back nine, stroking in an eight-footer on 15 for a three. His bokies came on 10, where he missed the green, and 12, where he flubbed a four-foot putt and at 16, where he strayed in the ditch.

HEAVY STANDOFF

Machen, Folley Battle To Disputed Draw

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Heavyweights Zora Folley and Eddie Machen, the top ranking contenders for the heavyweight title, battled to an unpoular draw in a 12-round bout in the Cow Palace Wednesday night.

Folley, from Chandler, Ariz., and weighing 194, built up a solid lead at the start with his stuff jabs but the finishing spurt of the 191½-pound Machen from Redding, Calif., influenced referee Frankie Carter who voted for him.

Machen, the No. 1 contender, was a 2½-1 favorite over the No. 2 ranked Folley when the two Negro fighters entered the ring.

Machen, who had won all his 24 fights, appeared confused by the jabbing of the stoical Folley and unable to move in. He did not land damaging blows until the bout was half over.

The crowd of 12,000 in the Cow Palace frequently booed slow action and loudly booed the draw decision. Referee Carter scored 117 to 116 for Machen, Judge Jack Downey saw it a 115-115 draw and Judge Fred Apostoli, former middleweight champ, scored for Folley 117-115.

VIRGIN WATERS MAKE BEST HOMES FOR HATCHERY BASS

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

There has been a lot of argument around this part of the country about whether the production of our warm water fish hatcheries should be used for stocking new or treated waters in lakes and ponds, or for improving lakes and streams where the fishing is poor or only mediocre. Not every time, but very often, when a fisherman has a poor day on waters where he caught a good string of fish five or ten years ago, he complains because the output from the nearest hatchery is not used to improve his favorite stream.

Charles Elliott

These complaints have been going on in many of the states for years. Except where some politician with more power than information demands the planting of bass or bream in a certain lake or stream, most of the hatchery output in all of the southern states goes to virgin or treated waters, as new ponds or those which have been drained and cleaned. The idea is that the tiny fry or fingerlings will have plenty of room to feed and grow and that the percentage of survival will be large. It has also been fairly well established that planted ponds stock the waters below them.

Those same hatchery fish, dumped into waters which are already filled with large fish of many species, don't have a chance to grow to catching size. They are merely forage for the big bass, crappie, channel cats, and all the others which feed on small minnows. I doubt if any of those hungry oldsters would stop in his feeding lunge to identify a baby bass, and then pass it up with some sort of fish language, which might say, "Better run along, sonny, and find yourself a place in shallow water before someone mistakes you are a minny."

As far as I am able to learn, Texas Game and Fish biologists are the first to come up with a study to prove that stocking waters which already have fish in them, is a waste of time and money. For three years they poured 7,000 bass into Lake Fort Brown near Brownsville, and at the end of the three-year period did what they call "a complete kill" on the lake. Only 38 of the 7,000 stocked bass were recovered.

"When we stock impoundments that contain other fish," one of the biologists said, "all we are doing is to pour in rather high-priced fish food for the rough fish already in the lake."

The men in charge of their hatchery program went on to say that hatcheries simply cannot duplicate natural breeding, and that one pair of 3-pound brood bass to the acre of water in a lake, will produce some 25,000 offspring for that acre, in comparison to the 200 fingerlings or fry used in the normal stocking procedure.

A local pole-and-liner brings up the question of why trout stock is successful in streams and bass are not.

Trout are grown in hatchery pools to legal size or larger before they are transferred to the streams. That is something you can't do to an old black bass. Confine a bunch of them in a small pool and they'll immediately proceed to swallow one another. The bass that can open its mouth wider than the bass next to it, survives. Then too, you can't stall-feed a bass like you can a trout. He prefers his food alive and kicking.

Once a friend who was trying to raise bass in a small space, developed a formula which contained all the essentials of a fish's diet, reduced it to vitamins and put it into a capsule. He asked if there were any recommendations I could suggest for its improvement.

"The only thing it needs," I predicted, "is a wiggle."

The bass in his pool would hit an occasional capsule as it sank, but refused to take their vitamins off the bottom.

We haven't got enough space around our hatcheries to grow our bass to catching size. And while I may not agree with our Game and Fish Commission on everything they do, I'm sure they get the most out of their bass hatcheries by using the output of stock in new and virgin waters.

Calhoun Gets Return Fight With Giardello

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—Matchmaker Bennie Ford announced Wednesday he had signed Joe Giardello and Rory Calhoun for a 10-round middleweight fight at the Cow Palace May 5.

Calhoun, from New York, stopped Yolando Pompey of Trinidad in his last fight. Giardello, of Philadelphia, has won his last 14 fights.

Ford said the winner would be in line for a title fight with champion Sugar Ray Robinson. No radio or television of the bout is planned.

BASEBALL NOTES

Musial Believes Injury (Huh?) May Help Him to Batting Crown

From Press Dispatches

An injury last year may be just what Stan Musial needs to capture his record-tying eighth National League batting championship this season.

That's right. The Man said so himself Wednesday at Denver, Colo., a stop on St. Louis' barnstorming tour.

Musial said a shoulder injury kept him from pulling the ball too much in the final two weeks last season. He hit over .500 during that period by just stroking the ball.

"I'm a better hitter when I hit to left field instead of pulling too much," the left-handed batter said. "I've known that all along, but it took my shoulder injury late last season to get my swing back into the groove."

Musial said there really were only two hittters he had to worry about in his quest to tie Honus Wagner's record. They were Hank Aaron and Willie Mays.

INJURY REPORT—Boston catcher Haywood Sullivan's operation to correct a ruptured spinal disc was termed successfull by Dr. J. L. Poppen. Poppen says it'll be six to eight weeks before the Donalsonville native can begin light exercises. . . . Sullivan's injury may have promoted $60,000 bonus catcher Jim Pagliaroni, released from the Army Tuesday, into the Red Sox picture. Manager Pinky Higgins said, "We must go with three catchers, and it's great to have a third catcher (Pagliaroni) who is such a terrific prospect." Sammy White and Pete Daley are No. 1 and No. 2. . . . Milwaukee's injured outfielder Wes Covington returns to Suds City for a knee operation, but swelling postponed any immediate work.

NOTES—Redleg rookie sensation Vada Pinson finally signed a Cincinnati contract. He previously was the property of Seattle (Pacific Coast League). . . . Tony Kubek "mysteriously" left the New York team for "personal business" in hometown Milwaukee. Speculation centers around the fact the business may be with the draft board. Kubek is 1-A.

The True Old-Style Kentucky Bourbon

Always smoother because it's slow-distilled. There are less expensive ways to make bourbon whiskies—but they'll never give you the smoothness you get in Early Times. The extra care and attention of slow distilling...the patient willingness to take more than twice as long...this is the old-style way, the smoothing way to make whisky. This is the better tasting bourbon you'll ask for again.

A Hopeful Sign in East: Electric Output Rising

By BOB WILLIMON

Does the nation's business go as New England's electric utilities go?

If so, the recession may be on its way out.

Staff Photo—Guy Hayes
"NO QUICK PICKUP"
NAPA Chief Shillady

That was the suggestion here Wednesday of a top Boston executive who claimed his firm's lowering electric output clued him to the current slump almost a year before it became of serious national concern. His forewarning came in "November a year ago."

"We catch things earlier in New England, and the fact that our current output is running 3 to 4 per cent above the same period last year may well be antecedent to a similar upturn throughout the country," said the executive.

HEADS BUYER ASSOCIATION

Speaking was Robert E. Shillady, president of the National Assn. of Purchasing Agents (an organization of countrywide repute for its business forecasts) and vice president general purchasing agent of New England Electric System Companies.

Here to address a meeting of the Georgia Assn. of Purchasing Agents at the Progressive Club, Shillady expressed doubt that the recession would "go much lower, but on the other hand I don't think there will be any quick or decided pickup.

"I hope it will be that way, because if we get too much in the way of artificial aid I'm afraid it will set off a degree of inflation that will be far more harmful.

"I don't think the current situation means we're 'going to hell in a hack'."

FOUR-STATE FIRM

Shillady, whose firm grosses 120 million dollars a year, serves four states and is New England's "largest integrated" electric system, also:

1. Blamed some of the current recession flap on the "fact" that many industries, which took advantage of boom years to expand their plants well beyond their needs at the time, are angling their yowls on a percentage-of-capacity-in-use basis.

2. Compared the economy's current trend to reducing an automobile's speed from 80 m.p.h. to 50 m.p.h. "It is a return from excessive to normal. I don't think booms can be considered normal, and that's what we've certainly been in."

U.S. Power Output Continues to Slump

Nationwide electricity output continued a three month slump last week and ran 3.1 per cent below the year ago level, the Edison Electric Institute reported. Output for the week ended April 5 was 11,326,000,000 kilowatt hours against 11,645,000,000 the week before and 11,693,000,000 a year ago.

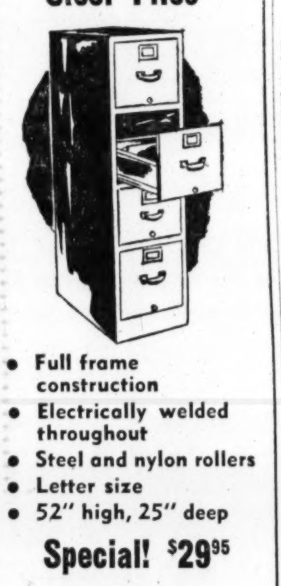

Pindar Mart Stays Quiet

Southeastern peanut trading was confined mostly to an occasional car or truckload this week as the market remained quiet with very few price changes, the Agricultural Marketing Service reports.

Sales and quotations, f.o.b. Southeastern shipping points were: Shelled Spanish No. 1s 22 to 22½ cents a pound; No. 2s 17 to 17½ cents; runners No. 1 new screen, 21½ to 22½ cents, and with 12 to 15 per cent splits, old screen, 19½ to 20½ cents. Runners No. 2 brought 15½ to 17½ cents according to the quality.

Georgia Bankers To Argue Branches

The controversial subject of branch banking is expected to be debated on the convention floor of the Georgia Bankers Assn. here Thursday.

The GBA executive council may submit to state bankers a proposal to remove the 80,000 population minimum from present Georgia branch banking laws and permit citywide branch banking by a bank in its "home office" city.

The suggestion has already been branded "inadequate" by spokesmen for Atlanta First National Bank.

First National recently sent out a pamphlet to banks over Georgia submitting two alternate proposals:

(1) Permitting any bank located in a city with a population of 30,000 to establish branches in any other city that large.

(2) Setting up a special GBA committee to draft "comprehensive" new legislation to be carried to the Georgia General Assembly for action.

CURRENT LAW

The current law prevents any bank from establishing branches unless it is located in a city of 80,000 population. Atlanta's First National would be allowed to establish branches in Georgia cities with 30,000 population under the First National proposal — but would not under the GBA suggested plan.

The GBA council plan also would limit the Citizens and Southern National Bank—which has home offices in Savannah—since the GBA proposal stipulates branch banking only in the home office city.

Mills B. Lane Jr., C. and S. president, said Tuesday he favored the GBA proposal to remove population limits, but felt that, in addition, all banks should have "equal expansion opportunities." He declined comment on the First National plan, saying he "was not familiar with their proposal."

Banking sources here said the GBA council's plan is aimed at aiding cities such as Valdosta, Moultrie, Marietta, Thomasville and others which need services in outlying areas but, under present laws, are unable to obtain branch banks.

1956 ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL

A 1956 amendment authorizing the establishing of new branches in Georgia's larger cities was held unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court. A May, 1957, supreme court ruling ended prolonged litigation in which a shareholder had sought to enjoin the C. and S. from establishing new branches in Atlanta, Macon and Augusta under the voided amendment.

The branch banking issue is only a portion of a heavy GBA agenda scheduled for Thursday. Several hundred delegates will elect new officers and attend the GBA's annual "agricultural luncheon" where the 1957 Robert Strickland service award will be made.

Bankers from all over the state Wednesday heard American Banking Assn. President Joseph C. Welman of Kennett, Mo., warn that inflation is "still the greatest danger to the nation's economy."

Welman stated his opposition to drastic tax cuts now while government expenditures are rising. He said federal public works spending should be limited to "the most urgent projects." He reported banks are currently "threatened by a serious profit squeeze."

GBA delegates toured the General Motors Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac plant at Doraville Wednesday. The Atlanta Clearing House Assn. was host at an evening reception. The group's annual banquet is set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Biltmore Hotel.

Odd Lot Transactions

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange reported Wednesday these odd lot transactions by principal dealers for April 8: Purchases of 250,605 shares; sales of 206,009 shares including 3,078 shares sold short.

Dry Goods

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP)—A stalemate persisted in the cotton textile market on forward goods Wednesday as buyers continued to bid below mill levels without success.

As a result, activity was confirmed mainly to spot and nearby sales of print cloths broadcloths and sheetings. Converters bid 17 cents a yard on the popular 80 square print cloth for forward delivery on average makes and 17¼ cents for premium quality.

In wool goods, reordering of fancy worsteds continued fairly active. Brand-name clothing manufacturers appeared to be placing the balance of their orders for the fall 1958 season.

In rayon goods, small quantities of spun and filament fabrics were sold for April delivery.

Tape's Rebound Sputters Away

Day-and-a-Half Recovery Called Purely Technical

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market's technical rebound from a long decline sputtered into irregularity late in the session.

The list of key stocks was a hodge-podge of fractional gains and losses with special issues making wider moves here and there.

For most of the session it was a higher market as prices followed through from their recovery of Tuesday with moderate gains. That rise ended nine-sessions of general decline.

By mid-afternoon there was a definite backing-away from the day's best prices. In the final half hour many gains were erased and losses established.

Market analysts said that the approximate day-and-a-half recovery from the prolonged downtrend was a typical snapback due to technical market factors such as short covering. They added that the shortness of the recovery move seemed to indicate little encouragement for the bullish side.

Wall Street regarded President Eisenhower's statement that he sees no need at this time for emergency anti-recession action such as a tax cut as a reiteration of previous utterances. There was no immediate reaction pricewise.

The general economic background, meanwhile, showed no dramatic change to shift the attitude in the financial district one way or another.

American Stock Exchange prices were irregular on volume of 650,000 shares compared with 610,000 Tuesday. Gainers included Arkansas Louisiana Gas, Thiokol and Humble Oil. Among losers were Fairchild Camera, Napco and Diners' Club.

Corporate bonds were higher and U.S. government bonds were up for the sixth straight session.

The earliest predecessor of the present company was formed in 1848—110 years ago. It is an operating gas utility and serves a growing section of the Southeast.
The price is about $14.00 per share and the dividend 80c, which gives a return of nearly 6%.

Cotton Rises On Buying

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 70 cents to $1 a bale higher as light but persistent trade and commission house buying found offerings limited.

Indications that profit-taking had run its course stimulated new buying and short covering.

Undesirable heavy rain in parts of Texas and Oklahoma and the purchase of about 2,400 bales of new-crop futures by a leading Memphis spot firm contributed to the better market tone.

Mill covering operations bolstered old-crop May and July although the rise revealed liberal offerings of May overhanging the market at 36 cents a pound. May did not quite reach that price.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—World sugar futures were firm on trade buying and commission house covering. The upturn was influenced by reports of broader rebel activity in Cuba.

Domestic raws were held at 4.25 cents a pound delivered basis, but some mid-April arrivals were believed available at 4.20 cents. Refiners indicated buying interest at 4.13 cents for nearby raws and would pay more for later deliveries, dealers said.

Demand for refined was fairly good.

Spain Report Kites Beans

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybean futures were bid up sharply on the Board of Trade on an unconfirmed report that Spain has started or soon will start buying very large amounts of soybean oil.

The gains ran to more than 3 cents a bushel.

The demand began suddenly by exporters and processors and prices shot ahead rapidly as the buying gathered steam with shorts jumping in to cover commitments. A strong soybean meal market also added to the momentum.

Meanwhile, corn futures chalked up minus signs all along the line for the first time in seven trading days. The rise of around 5 cents a bushel in most of the contracts apparently was too attractive to profit takers.

Exports in wheat, which had been good the past two days, dropped off Wednesday. Earlier, traders had given some consideration to reports that some light dust blowing had occurred late last week in parts of Colorado, western Kansas and western Oklahoma.
